

WILLIAM H. DECKER WAS KILLED

Freight Brakeman Fell From Railroad Trestle in Western Avenue Last Night

William H. Decker, of 59 Ludlum street met with a fatal accident last night when he fell from the railroad trestle bridge over the Western canal. Death is believed to be instantaneous.

Decker who was a brakeman on the railroad, was returning home with a companion, Frank Larche, of 30 Congress street, and was walking across the Western canal bridge on the opposite side of the tracks. Larche carried a lantern, but Decker was without one. When the two were about to cross the trestle bridge over the canal, Decker fell from the trestle and struck the stone retaining wall of the canal and went over into the water.

Larche heard the cry of his companion and immediately rushed to his assistance. He got down from the trestle to the bank below, calling for help as he did so, and soon Joseph J. Crowe of a Lagrange street was there to aid him. They pulled out the body of Decker and at once saw that he was extinct. The ambulance was summoned and the body was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertakers J. P. O'Donnell & Sons.

Deceased was about 25 years of age and leaves a wife and four children. His father, Lambert H. Decker, is employed at the freight office and his brother, L. H. Decker, Jr., is a brakeman on the day shifter.

The Work on Comfort Station in Paige Street Proves to be a Very Difficult Job

BLASTING ON FOUNDATION OF COMFORT STATION IN PAIGE STREET

As a proof of the fact that the vicinity of Merrimack square has always been the central point and busiest spot in Lowell, many are holding forth the fact that the men who are at work effecting excavations for the new sanitary station on Paige street encountered a well which has a depth of four feet in excess of that in which the station will extend. In this there were four feet or more of water and the contractor had to warn his men lest they fall in and drown. The comfort station, according to plans, will be about 15 feet in depth and this well extends approximately four or five feet deeper than that. Many are of the opinion that in the days of long ago, when this beautiful city was merely the town of Lowell, the place which is to serve as a location for the sanitary station was the "town pump" or general meeting place of the townpeople. In all events, it is quite evident that a well had been dug and that it is still there, and further, it will have to be done away with by those who are engaged in the work.

Contractor Condon is experiencing the greatest difficulty at present, that has ever confronted men engaged in making excavations in Lowell, for every inch of the digging has to be done through a solid and interminable ledge of soft variety of rock. As the work sinks deeper, this difficulty is emphasized for the seams become fewer and fewer and the rock harder. At first the removal was accomplished by means of hand-drills, but now blasting has to be resorted to and this is an exceedingly delicate operation in that locality where the buildings are at the very edge of the pit. For this reason the greatest care has to be exercised in using the explosives.

In the blasting of the rock on Paige street, dynamite is used exclusively, each charge consisting of one stick of the substance, or in other terms, about three-quarters of a pound. A hole is drilled in the place to be blasted and in this is placed the explosive. A cap is inserted in the stick of dynamite and wires are arranged from this to a battery some distance away. Dynamite is far more powerful and effective than powder and this is one of the reasons for its use. Again, the powder is employed when the rock is to be split but not broken into bits, as in the case of quarrying granite. Dynamite will smash the stone into small pieces and if not properly blanketed, will send these pieces flying in all directions.

To prevent damage of this kind, numerous logs, railroad ties, and small branches are piled over the blast and bound by means of a chain. The charge is then set off and not only is the stone prevented from doing damage, but moreover, the sound is greatly deadened by the process. The explosion is effected by allowing a current to pass from the battery to the cap and the electric apparatus is operated with a handle similar to that on a bicycle pump. This means of removing the hard rock ledge is very effective and is now used almost continually.

It is interesting to watch the men drilling by hand. One holds the drill while two others drive it in with heavy sledge hammers. This requires unusual skill for if one were to miss, the holder of the drill would in all probability suffer a broken arm if not an even more serious injury. A new derrick has been brought to the scene and will be run by an electric motor. This will be put into operation as soon as the wiring is completed.

THE SOCIALIST MAYOR Of Schenectady Placed Under Arrest

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 16.—George R. Lunn, socialist mayor of Schenectady, Charles A. Mullen, his commissioner of public works, and Rev. Robert A. Bakeman, formerly a member of Mayor Lunn's cabinet, were arrested at Little Falls yesterday afternoon charged with violation of a town ordinance which prohibits loitering on the streets.

For four hours the men were locked up at Little Falls police headquarters. Then Mayor Lunn was placed on trial, but at 5:30 o'clock, the case being unfinished, the Schenectady executive and his two companions were permitted their liberty on their own recognizance until this morning when Mayor Lunn's trial was resumed.

The arrest of Lunn, Mullen and Bakeman followed an attempt by them to address a large crowd of men who were employed in the Phoenix knitting mills in Little Falls until the strike a few days ago. Bakeman was making a vigorous speech to the strikers in which he was attacking their employers and corporations in general, when Chief of Police Long ordered him to desist and threatened him with arrest if he did not do so.

At this moment, Lunn and Mullen appeared on the scene and advised Bakeman to go on with his address. Chief Long told Lunn and Mullen that they were trespassing on dangerous ground and ordered them to go away. Lunn and Mullen became engaged in a sharp dispute with Chief Long as to the law covering free speech and outdoor meetings, and Bakeman also took a hand. Chief Long thereupon placed the trio under arrest and escorted them to police headquarters.

A BLOODHOUND PACK of Elopers Was Placed on the Trail

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 15.—Ruth Stern, the 16-year-old grand-daughter of Eli Stern, a prominent horseman of this place, and her 15-year-old sweetheart, Wallace Weidinger, who eloped last night, are being traced by a pack of bloodhounds which the old man has ordered to track the pair. The trail has led down Middlebury county to the Philadelphia area. Weidinger is a "prisoner's devil" employed in this city, and he was paid in "dog food" for the search.

That was the story told by a man who said he had been paid to follow the pair. He said he had been paid to follow the pair and had been paid to follow the pair. He said he had been paid to follow the pair and had been paid to follow the pair.

Experience Gained While in The Drug Business

I have been troubled more or less in the last five years with kidney trouble and from the experience I gained while in the drug business and from different cases where I have sold Swamp-Root with perfect satisfaction to those who purchased it, and as I never had a single complaint regarding the medicine while I was in business, I was in a position to know that it was a great purifier of the blood and that it was a great purifier of the blood and that it was a great purifier of the blood.

Personally appeared before me, this 15th of September, 1909, D. A. KOONCE, who subscribed to the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

"KID" REGAN IS SOUGHT He is Believed to be Fleeing Prisoner

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Half a dozen attendants from the West Side court will visit police headquarters today and view photographs of Peter Regan, "Kid" Regan. They will be called upon by Deputy Police Commissioner Donahoe to state whether or not in their opinion "Kid" Regan was the prisoner who escaped from the custody of Traffic Policeman Twillman while in the west side courthouse.

After a long conference with Commissioner Donahoe yesterday, Chief Michael McLaughlin stated that he was satisfied none of the attendants of the court were responsible for the escape of the prisoner, who gave the name of John Clark and said he lived at No. 240 West Forty-third street.

The chief magistrate also said that he would apply today for an appropriate warrant to search for the fugitive and to connect the prisoner's name with the office of the complaint clerk.

The statements circulated during the five years that "Kid" Regan was missing after his indictment in 1905 for the murder of Walter New Joyce in a dive at Thirty-first street and Broadway were being repeated yesterday. They were to the effect that because he had a brother who was a police lieutenant he received assistance in studies justice from the members of the force. "Kid" Regan was tried two years ago for the murder, but pleaded guilty to assault in the third degree and served one year in prison.

ICE CREAM That is Made from Sour Milk is Pronounced to be Good and is Much Cheaper

MANHATTAN, N.Y., Oct. 16.—Here is the Kansas Agricultural college's report for our sour milk ice cream, vouching for an official bulletin.

It was wanted for Sunday dinner, allow a pint bottle of milk to sour and become curdled about the middle of the week. Saturday morning pour this into a gallon of cream and add one and one-half pounds of sugar. Then cook three pounds of sugar, four eggs beaten separately, a small quantity of vanilla and enough grape juice or any other flavoring to suit. Freeze in the usual manner in an ice-cream freezer.

It is declared to be in every way equal to the cream, but is much cheaper. It is ready frozen emulsion or cottage cheese.

ROOSEVELT IS RESTING EASILY He Was Joined by His Family Today and Apparently is Out of Danger

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—During the early hours of the night Colonel Roosevelt's sleep often was broken and for long periods he was awake, willing after the time with a copy of Macaulay's Essays, which he had brought to the hospital with him. Often the volume would fall from his hands and for a short space he would doze, only to awaken with a start and resume his reading. At two o'clock in the morning his clinical record was regularly taken but shortly after that time he fell into a deep slumber from which he did not awaken until long past daylight. That the long sleep had been beneficial was at once apparent and he was "feeling fine" to confirm his general appearance.

As soon as the colonel awoke he insisted upon having his breakfast, which he had ordered before midnight, for 7 o'clock. He was dissuaded, however, from having it at this early hour and was told he must have his bath and then his breakfast would be prepared for him.

Dr. John B. Murphy, who is in charge of Col. Roosevelt, and his assistants were expected at the hospital shortly after eight o'clock when another examination of the patient was to be made. Dr. Terrell spent the night in an adjoining room to that occupied by Col. Roosevelt and as soon as the latter awoke given him a visit. While he was being given his bath the colonel remarked on the prospects for a pleasant stay here, which he said must be ready for him just as soon as his sponge bath had been completed. He ordered for breakfast, bacon, soft-boiled eggs, buttered toast, and a pot of tea. Nurse Fitzgerald said the colonel was extremely cheerful and was looking forward to the visit of the physicians, who are to make a more extended examination of his wound and decide whether the bullet shall be removed or not.

It is not expected that a bulletin will be issued by the physicians until this examination has been made. Dr. Terrell declined to comment on the colonel's condition.

When his breakfast was brought to him Col. Roosevelt viewed it with a smile and after he had finished declared it to be "just what I needed." He resumed reading while his nurses made preparations for the consultation.

SCHUNK REFUSES TO TALK FURTHER ABOUT HIS ATTACK ON ROOSEVELT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 16.—John Schrank, who attempted to assassinate Col. Roosevelt in Milwaukee Monday night, had a good night's rest in a cell at the county jail, to which he was transferred after being arraigned in the district court yesterday.

"Schrank was asleep at 10:30 last night," said Sheriff Arnold. "He slept throughout the night."

He ate his breakfast, composed of the usual prison fare, at the regular hour and seemed to have a better appetite than on yesterday morning. An assistant says he is through talking and refuses to make any other comment on his attempt on the former president's life. All is quiet in the vicinity of the jail.

NESTOR'S Funeral of Mrs. Nestor took place this morning at 10 o'clock from the funeral home of W. McKenna, 119 Bridge street and was largely attended.

The cortege proceeded to St. Michael's church where the Rev. John J. Shaw, the choir directed by Mr. Thomas P. Roulier sang the Gregorian mass. The organ, the solos of the mass were sustained by Miss Griffin and Mr. Roulier. The bearers were Messrs. Hildred, Henry, John, Henry, Patrick, E. Sedor and John Nestor. Interment was in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery where Rev. P. Murphy and the burial prayers at the grave. Funeral Director James W. McKenna in charge.

SULLIVAN'S Funeral of Mrs. Sullivan took place this morning from her home, 12 Hazel street. High mass of requiem was celebrated at the Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock.

The choir was under the direction of Mr. Charles Smith. Mrs. Hildred presiding at the organ. The mass was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Shaw. The choir was under the direction of Mr. Charles Smith. SCHUNK REGARDED AS AN ECCENTRIC CHARACTER IN HIS NATIVE TOWN

MENDEL, Bavaria, Oct. 16.—John Schrank, the assassin of Col. Roosevelt, is a native of the village of Erding in northern Bavaria, about 20 miles from this city. Several members of his family still reside there and are in very good repute.

Schrank at the time of his departure for America at the age of 18 years ago, was unable to secure employment in the vicinity. He has been carried on the army mobilization lists as a deserter since he left.

BIG PLANS FOR BOSTON PORT TO STOP THE RUMMAGE SALES

Sum of $2,500,000 to be Spent at South Boston to Make Improvements

Board of Health Took Action at a Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—The directors of the port of Boston made public yesterday reports of what they have done and are planning for the development of the port of Boston.

The report deals principally with the taking over of a large area of land in South Boston and the plans for its development into a shipyard and railroad terminal without a superior in this country, capable of accommodating ships of a size that New York cannot handle.

Related to this are their plans for the construction of two great drydocks and for the improvement of the harbor channels, for which a preliminary survey has been authorized by the United States government.

Square Mile of Terminal

The plan shows that on the South Boston side they propose to develop a triangular piece of land and flats extending from the present New Haven railroad yards and piers to a point north of Castle Island, and covering an area of about four-fifths of a square mile within the line of the pier heads.

These pier heads will mark the edge of a channel 100 feet deep and at all points 1000 feet wide, following the line of the present channel, while the so-called reserved channel, now 20 feet deep, is to be deepened, widened to about 600 feet and straightened.

The report itself says nothing of the more tentative plans for development on the East Boston side, but the map indicates the directors' hope to fill in all the bay front between Point East and across to Chelsea Point, Winthrop and back to the property of the East Boston Land Company, and to build it up with warehouses and factories, huge railroad yards and a row of great piers, bordering on a 1000-foot wide channel.

Should this be done, it would mean the creation of a territory nearly two square miles in area and about equal to Charleston plus all the lower section of East Boston, or to the city proper from North End park to the Boston & Albany tracks from Fort Point Channel to the Chelsea river basin and Huntington avenue.

To Include Grain Elevator

The directors' report follows: "The contract between the port directors and the Old Colony, New Haven and Boston & Maine railroads, by which the state regarding control of the great Commonwealth pier and adjacent property at South Boston, is now before the governor and council for approval.

"Subject to this approval, the port directors have by vote set aside $2,500,000 of the $3,000,000 at their disposal.

Board of Health Took Action at a Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon

At the regular meeting of the board of health yesterday afternoon, Agent Bates said that the holding of rummage sales in this city should be forbidden, and upon motion of Dr. Thomas F. Curran it was voted to prohibit the holding of such sales until the board arrives at some definite conclusion concerning them.

Agent Bates said that the piling together of clothing from many sources is not conducive to the stamping out of contagious diseases. "It has been a practice of churches and societies," he said, "to get clothing from houses and to sell it in vacant stores, halls and such places. I think it best to prohibit the continuance of such sales, at least for a time. Of course the clothing is furnished by a member of the health department, but often times the clothing is lying loosely about, and I doubt if such a fumigation amounts to much at times. I feel that after a time new pieces of clothing are brought in and sold. These new pieces have not been fumigated, and they would prove a dangerous source of infection if they happened to come from homes where a contagious disease was running."

In connection with reports of the scarlet fever scare, Mr. Bates submitted data concerning the ages of those who are now quarantined with it. The ages and the number of cases at each age are as follows: Two years, 3; three years, 8; four years, 3; five years, 11; six years, 10; seven years, 9; eight years, 17; nine years, 2; ten years, 5; eleven years, 12 years, five; 13 years, two; 15 years, one; 20 years, two; 22 years, one; 25 years, three; 26 years, one; 31 years, one; 32 years, one, and fortynine.

The total of cases quarantined is 99. Ninety per cent of the total cases had occurred in persons from two to 15 years of age. About 75 per cent were persons between the ages of two and eight years. This, said Dr. Curran, indicated the cause with which contagion could be spread, especially when the rash showed so very faintly that even physicians could not always detect it. Not only that, but after a child had been found to have the disease, following two or three days in the house, all fever and illness passed and the patient chafed to get out once more.

John P. Quinn was given a hearing on application for a stable in the rear of his property, off Moore street. The proposed stable would be 20 feet from the house.

Michael Broderick, who lives at 4 Moore street, said he would object to the stable if Mr. Quinn were to have his teams go to it from Moore street. Mr. Quinn said that there is a stable on the site at the present time, and that it has been used for 20 years. He proposed to tear it down and to improve conditions there by erecting a modern, sanitary building. This closed the hearing. Mr. Quinn being told to file his plans for his new stable with the health board.

The location of John Vlahos, for a stable with four additional stalls at 205 School street, was tabled. It was voted to instruct the agent to call the attention of the water board to various bubble fountains in the city. Dr. Rummelle said that the bubblers at corner of Moody and Riverside streets did not bubble off-feretly.

At this terminal the port of Boston will be able to offer in the shortest possible time superior accommodations for the largest ships now projected—accommodations which the port of New York cannot at present furnish.

"This terminal will be accessible to the Grand Trunk railroad when it enters Boston. The Boston & Maine and New Haven railroads have agreed to make for this terminal the same rates of switching charges, that they make to their own terminals. A grain elevator is planned as part of the terminal equipment, as it is expected that grain will form an important part of the cargo of the type of vessels that it is expected will use it."

Channel Improvements

"Meanwhile, the port directors have been shaping up broad plans for the future. They were instrumental in securing the rivers and harbors bill, passed by the last congress, clauses authorizing preliminary surveys looking toward an increased width and depth of the outer main ship channel and for the construction of proper approach channels to the terminal facilities that they might create.

"At the request of Col. Abbot, United States engineer officer in charge at Boston, the port directors have submitted to him a plan indicating the outlines of terminal development which seem to the directors desirable if proper approaches can be secured.

"If it is found upon the survey desirable to modify the approaches indicated, the plan is readily capable of modification, and on both sides of the harbor the actual construction would proceed in units as the demands of commerce required.

Dry Dock Sites

"One very important result of the complete survey and borings of the entire property of the state on the South Boston side made this summer by the port directors has been the disclosure that the state possesses an undisturbed site for the construction of the largest dry dock in the east of the Commonwealth Pier in the state immediately adjoining the filled land belonging to the state. On this site there is an opportunity for two drydocks, one 150 feet long and one 300 feet long.

"One of the difficulties of a drydock is the securing of a proper foundation for it. The borings at South Boston have disclosed the presence of bedrock which seriously interferes with the arrangement of plans that have been hitherto supposed to be possible on that water front, but one of these very bedrock furnishes an admirable dry dock site and should materially reduce the cost of construction of a large dry dock. The engineering department is now at work on the preparation of plans and estimates for a dry dock on this site."

WOODS IS HELD LIABLE RECTORY WAS DAMAGED

Negligent in Firing Gun Fr. O'Malley and Others Says Judge Had Narrow Escape

DEDHAM, Oct. 15.—That Albert H. Woods, the Brookline florist, is criminally liable for the death of Thomas Golden of Cambridge, whom he shot on the night of Sept. 18, 1912, while the latter was stealing violets from Woods' garden, is the verdict of Judge Charles P. Perkins, justice of the Brookline municipal court, who yesterday morning with the clerk of courts of Norfolk county.

Woods is now being held for the grand jury for the December term of the Norfolk superior criminal court on the charge of manslaughter.

Judge Perkins says: "The deceased was shot and killed by Albert H. Woods of Brookline and killed on the premises of said Woods, situated on Warren st., nearly opposite Dudley st., in said Brookline."

"Albert H. Woods was lying in wait for trespassers on his premises on the evening of Sept. 18, 1912. Woods had been previously annoyed by trespassers who had dug up and carried away violet plants from his garden. He was armed with a gun loaded with No. 8 shot and was concealed in a dark place in the garden."

"About 8:30 p. m. the deceased entered the garden and began to dig up violet plants and put them into baskets carried by him. Upon being detected by Woods the deceased took flight and while running was shot by Woods with a basket of violets in his hands. Woods fired the gun at the deceased and discharged a large quantity of shot into his back, which resulted in death from hemorrhage almost immediately and before help arrived."

"Woods knew the general direction in which the deceased was running and at the time the gun was fired Woods thought he discerned the outlines of the body of the deceased, and discharging the gun at him, not intending to kill him, and probably not meaning to seriously wound him. Woods was not acquainted with the deceased, and had no motive in attacking him, other than that of punishing any person he might discover committing trespass upon his grounds and stealing therefrom."

"I find that Albert H. Woods was grossly negligent in discharging the gun at the deceased and that for the same reason thereby he is criminally liable."

LARCENY OF $40,000 Is Charged Against R. G. Larimer

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—Charged with the larceny of $40,000 from Winnipeg people with whom he had business dealings, Robert Gilson Larimer, former head of the Larimer Electric Agency, Winnipeg, was arrested in a Newbury street house yesterday by inspectors Shewell and Burke of police headquarters, who trapped him there after a 19 days' search.

Immediately after his arrest yesterday Larimer declared that he would return to Winnipeg without legal assistance. Larimer disappeared from Winnipeg Sept. 1, a few weeks ago a circular letter was issued by Chief Constable McPherson of Winnipeg and Chief Elliott of the provincial police, bearing a picture and description of Larimer.

The striking resemblance between this picture and a man in this city was noticed by headquarters men assigned to the case and the receipt of additional information to the effect that Larimer was suspected of hiding in Boston sent them in search of him.

The Larimer Electric company, of which Larimer was the head, prior to his disappearance last September, is an automobile agency, and the $40,000 stolen was secured under false pretences and forged checks. Larimer, although for some years a resident of the Canadian Northwest, is a native of Pennsylvania.

LITTLE GIRL IS MISSING Mother is Worried Over Her Disappearance

Ruby Trott, aged eight years, has been missing from her home, 30 Warren street, since Monday morning, and her mother, Mrs. George W. Trott, is greatly worried over her daughter's disappearance.

Mrs. Trott got the little girl ready to go to school in Chestnut street, and the latter left the house about 8 o'clock. That was the last Mrs. Trott has seen of Ruby. The girl has light brown hair, dark eyes and wears a light colored dress, trimmed with blue, a blue hair ribbon, cream colored coat, no hat and black shoes and stockings.

"The mother is quite at a loss to account for her daughter's absence for so long a time. The girl has run away from home several times in the past, but she has always been found and brought home within a few hours. Her last disappearance was early last summer. That time she was found asleep late at night, in an ash bin."

Dies of Strangulation

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 15.—An 18-month-old child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mendenhall of 101 Central street, died yesterday of strangulation. Death was caused by a piece of apple lodging in the child's throat.

Every week now shows an increase. October will be a record breaker. The reason of course is plain—We have the best stock and name the lowest prices.

LITTLE GIRL IS MISSING Mother is Worried Over Her Disappearance

Ruby Trott, aged eight years, has been missing from her home, 30 Warren street, since Monday morning, and her mother, Mrs. George W. Trott, is greatly worried over her daughter's disappearance.

Mrs. Trott got the little girl ready to go to school in Chestnut street, and the latter left the house about 8 o'clock. That was the last Mrs. Trott has seen of Ruby. The girl has light brown hair, dark eyes and wears a light colored dress, trimmed with blue, a blue hair ribbon, cream colored coat, no hat and black shoes and stockings.

"The mother is quite at a loss to account for her daughter's absence for so long a time. The girl has run away from home several times in the past, but she has always been found and brought home within a few hours. Her last disappearance was early last summer. That time she was found asleep late at night, in an ash bin."

LICENSE BOARD Held a Meeting Last Night and Granted a Number of Minor Licenses

The regular meeting of the license commission was held last night, and considerable routine business was transacted. The following licenses were granted:

Licenses to sell ice cream, confectionery, etc., on the Lord's day were surrendered by the following and were ordered cancelled: Margaret J. Jones, corner of Cross and Fletcher streets; Fred Rogers, 934 Central street; Teresa Fancher, 53 Wamsutt street; and Emily Lamour, 129 Salem street.

Licenses to sell ice cream, confectionery, etc., on the Lord's day were granted to the following: Theresa Fancher, 53 Wamsutt street; Louise Anna Dickerman, 129 Salem street; Frederick P. Crawford, corner of Cross and Fletcher streets, and Minnie A. Clancy, 970 Central street.

Licenses to keep billiard and pool tables for hire were granted to Marinos Georgiadis of 815 Market street and Peter T. Karanichas of 189 Middlesex street.

A hawker's and peddler's license was granted to John Nik of 29 Tremont street.

A theatre license was granted to Proctor & Levine, proprietors of the Pastime theatre on North Beach street.

A license to keep for hire a hackney coach and taxicab was granted to Michael C. Killean of 149 Cross street.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Adds Healthful Qualities to the Food

Prof. Prescott, of the University of Michigan, explains why Royal Baking Powder adds healthful qualities to the food.

Testifying before the Pure Food Committee of Congress, the Professor stated that fruit acids were excellent articles of food and that of these cream of tartar, the acid of grapes, held rank with the highest both in itself and its effect in the process of leavening and baking. He regarded the results from cream of tartar baking powder as favorable to health. Scientists and hygienists are in accord with this opinion.

Royal is the only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar.

An Arrival in Our City Which Will Interest Those Who Have

RHEUMATISM

Sciatica and Neuritis

Three diseases which have plagued humanity with needless pains and misery for centuries, attacking people of all degrees and ages and baffling doctors, are RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA and NEURALGIA.

Should it be long known that a physician living here could RELIEVE EVERY CASE of these stubborn diseases, the sufferers of the city and surrounding cities would crowd his office.

One physician in New York, a specialist in his profession, has been able to RELIEVE PRACTICALLY EVERY CASE PRESENTED TO HIM, with a prescription which is known as "NURITO." It is an etopos prescription and contains neither opiate nor narcotic; and it has proven itself in more than 45,000 cases to be a potent antidote for the uric acid in the system which causes rheumatism, sciatica and neuritis.

"Nutril" is one of the NOTEWORTHY ACHIEVEMENTS of the medical profession in these days of rapid advancement. It is NOT a patent medicine and must not be subjected to the prejudice which marks a false nostrum.

No dispute is necessary—on the contrary, you are recommended to eat your usual allotment of food. No matter how badly you are suffering, you will begin to feel the medicine work at once.

"Nalox" which is in powder form, sells for $1 and $2 a box. To be sure, you will be convinced—to replace your pains and aches with relief—for this advancement in medicine. Magistral Chem-

"PICKANINNIES" GAVE A FINE MINSTREL SHOW

Soloists Generously Applauded—Good Jokes by End Men

JOSEPH P. CARROLL, Manager of the Show

Carroll, who was one of the "ends," and his work was one of the features of the show. Commissioner James E. Donnelly, acted as interactor, and he proved to be the right man in the right place. He made an ideal interactor, and was responsible in a large measure for the success of the show.

William H. Way, the musical director, and his long, deserves great credit for the manner in which the show was presented. Miss Anna Murphy presided at the piano and her accompaniment of the singers and her work assisted greatly in the excellence of the performance. The other in the show all contributed their share to the success that the performance scored.

The program opened shortly after eight o'clock, and when the draperies were drawn aside, the young men were ready dressed, together with the beautiful decorations of the background presented a most picturesque spectacle. The end men were "loud" sections, while the members of the chorus were dark, trousers, white shirt waists and natty black ties. The members of the chorus occupied seats arranged in tiers while the interactor, soloists, and end men, formed a semi-circle in the front row.

The stage itself was prettily decorated. The prevailing color scheme of the background was white and crimson, with touches of green and black, while large American flags suspended from the ceiling added considerably to the attractiveness of the platform.

The overture was given with great vim, and embraced a number of the latest selections that were well arranged, and at the conclusion of the number the performers were loudly applauded. When the applause subsided and Men Carroll, McNamara, Chapin and Critchley pulled a number of jokes that hit members of the company as well as a number in the audience. They also introduced a number of witty sayings during the entire program, that met with the approval of those present.

"Dreams Just Dreams," was the next number, this being given by William Wilson, who was well received. "The Time Soldier Man," was rendered by Earl Man McNamara, and he made a fine hit. "That's How I Need You," was cleverly given by Lynnwood Knappe. "The Got the Finest Man," and song, by Michael Critchley, was one of the big hits of the evening, and during the number the other end assisted in its success by answering the singer and playing the bones and tambos, with fine effect. "Any Old Port in a Storm," the ever popular bass solo, was given in a very creditable manner by Tony Johnson, who possessed a deep tone, that he used to good advantage. "Chanson Provinciale" was given in a remarkably clever manner by Master Alfred Fletcher, of St. Anna's boys' choir. He won tremendous applause and was obliged to give several encores. "Somebody Else is Getting It" was Earl Man Chapin's offering, and he made a great hit, especially so when he exhibited a lemon, while giving his last chorus. "Mine," a beautiful composition, was beautifully given by John Wilby. "Where Are You Going?" was the final end song, this being given by Joe Carroll, Lowell's inimitable extemporaneous humorist, and he made a decided hit, receiving a great hand.

The finale with solo, "Glory," by James Roane, concluded a minstrel program that was very enjoyable and exceptionally well given. Mr. Roane's solo pleased immensely, and the work of the chorus was a bright feature of the entire production.

The members of the chorus were as follows: Leo Regnier, Edward Gault, Frank Marshall, S. Marshall, H. J. Sullivan, T. Boyle, T. Mann, G. Mann, S. Callahan, W. P. McLoughlin, W. Craig, T. Donovan, A. O'Neil, O. Bradley, J. Hogan, W. Geary, J. McAdams, J. Grady, F. Sadtler, J. Spillane, W. Cooney, T. McAndrews, G. Olson, T. Kelly, P. McDonald, P. Warren, P. Landon, P. Burns, W. Gilchrist, A. Calley, R. Connor, J. Dillon, W. Donovan, W. Gilchrist, R. McLoughlin.

After the show the floor was cleared and general dancing to the excellent music of the Colonial orchestra, John Donnelly director, was enjoyed until midnight. The floor was in charge of Floor Marshall Walter J. Scannell, who managed the dancing in a most satisfactory manner. He was assisted by the members of the chorus who acted as aids.

BOYS' AUTO RACE

To Be Conducted by the Boys' Club of Pawtucketville, and Prizes Offered

A valuable automobile race is to be held in Pawtucketville Saturday, the race course being the smooth paving in the Mammoth road. All boys of the city, fifteen years of age or under are invited to enter. Three suitable prizes will be given to the first three drivers. The race is to be held under the auspices of the Pawtucketville Boys' club and will be one of the many features to be held in connection with the outing by the club on that day.

OPERATIVE INJURED

Her Hand Caught in Machine and Tops of Two Fingers Were Torn Off This Morning

Karoline Hytuta suffered a painful accident while at work in the spinning room of the Hamilton mills about 8:30 o'clock this morning. She was operating a fly machine when her left hand got caught in the machine and the tops of two of the fingers were torn off. The ambulance was summoned and she was taken to the Lowell hospital where the wound was dressed. She resides at 10 Amory street.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES WERE DISCUSSED

Meeting Was Held in the First Trinitarian Church

OTIS W. BUTLER, Who Spoke for Republican Candidate

The vestry of the First Trinitarian church in Dutton street was the scene of a rather interesting meeting last night and while the attendance was limited to a mere handful of men there was no dearth of interest. It was a rather unusual meeting, too, and the speakers were supposed to tell why they believed in this or that political party. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood of the church and the subject of the meeting was "Presidential Preference." The different political parties were asked to send representatives. Hon. James B. Casey was sent down from Humphrey O'Sullivan's headquarters and Mr. Casey said he was rather astonished when he received the assignment. He thought at first, he said, that it was a rally and he allowed that an O'Sullivan rally at the First Trinitarian church was going some.

Favored Socialist Party

Mr. Joseph MacDonald was introduced as the man to represent the Socialist party. Mr. MacDonald said he thought he was the wrong man for the job inasmuch as he was not affiliated with the Socialists of Lowell. He said, however, that he was in sympathy with the socialists and the party, and he thought that only through the channels of socialism could justice be done the human family. He said the socialist party was the only party that stood for common ownership and that common ownership was the solution of the great problem of today.

He said that it was the spirit of the socialist to build for the human family and that the socialist was opposed to the gigantic fortunes of the few. Mr. MacDonald devoted a great deal of his talk to the liquor traffic and painted word pictures of the poverty and despair that follows in its wake. He said that the liquor traffic was run for the benefit of the few and the curse and ruin of the many.

The Republican Party

Representative Otis W. Butler argued the case for the present administration and said there were many reasons why the present president should be re-elected. Mr. Butler read several paragraphs from a speech by Henry Cabot Lodge, which he said voiced his sentiments, and he also read extracts from the Republican platform.

Sykes a Bull Moose

Richard K. Sykes told of his admiration for Theodore Roosevelt and of his devotion to principles declared by the progressives. He said he had abundant faith in the principles of the new party. There was a time when he thought pretty well of the G. O. P., but he allowed that new conditions call for new men, new methods and new departures. He said he did not feel as he was tonight men in the right place. Another man had been selected to represent the progressive party at the meeting, but was unable to be present and the job, he said, was turned over to him. "If I can do nothing else," he said, "I can stand in the way of a successful party." He said the great leader of the progressive party last night in Milwaukee. Mr. Sykes' auditors, however, were not and not a gun was aimed at him. "I feel," he said, "that a change is needed in the political makeup of this country today. The men who have been trying to run the politics of this land have made a bad job of it for the people at large. I am a Bull Moose, I feel that I have got on the right track and I want you to come along with me. Conditions are not what they should be and the quickest and best remedy for our ills is to join the progressive party."

Democratic Party

Hon. James B. Casey spoke in favor of Woodrow Wilson for president and the democratic party in general. "Despite all that has been said I address you as fellow democrats," said Mr. Casey. "For the high cost of living, for the recent for a man's political beliefs and the only way to accomplish a change is by voting the democratic ticket."

Mr. Casey expressed heartfelt sympathy for Colonel Roosevelt and condemned in no uncertain terms the distasteful act that came so dangerously near ending the life of so great a man.

"The democratic party," said Mr. Casey, "stands for progress and the general betterment of conditions and if the principles of the democratic party are embodied into law they will bring the desired relief. I believe that the present spirit of unrest is due to the bungling administration of the republican party."

"I believe that our next president will be a democrat, because I believe that the voters have seen the light. They waited patiently for a glimpse at the alleged silver lining of the republican cloud, but the silver lining did not put in an appearance. The republican party has been lambasting the people, and the average voter has connected with that fact."

Supporters of the Different Candidates Were Heard citizenship, and he is a man, who, if elected, will give his attention to public rather than to private interests. Not a word can be said against him and he will solve the vexing problems of the day if you will but give him the opportunity."

Rev. C. H. Williams of Billerica, introduced as the speaker-at-large, argued that the average man, with his average intelligence, and his modest, even progress forward, will be the instrument of solving the present problems which are confronting us at present. He expressed his anxiety and regret that in this political party, and not in this political party, of the one, but in the rest of humanity, which is made up of the average voter.

MAYOR J. F. FITZGERALD

Says That Halpins Are Too Long

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Dame Boston will have to get a new brand of halpin. If Mayor Fitzgerald has his way, the mayor said yesterday, in view of the many complaints received, that he will send to the next meeting of the city council a draft of an ordinance limiting the length of the halpin for use in public streets and public places to six inches.

The present length of the halpin, he said, was a nuisance to citizens in the streets and on the cars. Now that people are attracted to their sleep by the length of the halpin they should be accorded protection during the hours of wakefulness by the expiration from the city of the halpin in wearing over six inches.

The mayor intends to make Boston a safe place to live in as well as a comfortable place to sleep in.

Your Brain
Is a Battery

Its thoughts are the sparks

that set Success in motion.

The simplest form of battery requires three factors to make the electric spark—(zinc, copper and an acid).

The human brain also requires three vital elements to put forth thought—water, albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

In the Brain as in the Battery, let a single element become weakened from yesterday's use and lessened activity follows. Therefore, in order to keep a good working brain or add to its power, one absolutely must use food which contains albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

Why not do a bit of thinking now?

Water and albumen exist plentifully in every-day food, but Phosphate of Potash is often lacking.

That missing element exists freely in the outer coating of wheat and barley, but the miller of white bread flour throws it out because it makes his flour brown instead of white.

GRAPE-NUTS FOOD

Made of choice wheat and malted barley, retains the rich brain-building Phosphate of Potash required by Nature for supporting bright brains and active minds.

Pure! Wholesome! Appetizing! This food is partly pre-digested and quickly absorbed. A morning dish with cream provides force for accomplishment that many a man has come to know and appreciate.

Common Sense goes a long way toward making Success.

To eat right often means to be right.

The Talent Went Wrong in the Guessing on Five Different Events

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 16.—Bump after bump was the uncomfortable road traveled by the talent at the races yesterday afternoon. The wise ones had five chances to select a winner, but not once did they guess correctly.

Flower Direct, Dudie Archdale, Earl Jr. Morgan and Lucille Brooks fell by the wayside in succession before Walter Coenato, Billy Burk, Ess H. Kay, Lord Brussels and Pete.

It surely was a day of surprises as only Lord Brussels of the five winners was counted as having more than an outside chance before the word was given.

The black stallion Ess H. Kay, owned by James Trauter and driven by Walter Cox, was the real drive package in the grab bag. With Evelyn unable to start in the fast pace, first money was thought to be a gift for Earl Jr.

The gray horse had speed enough, but his driver wasted it, while Cox drove capital race behind the son of Direct Hit.

Hopkins started Earl Jr. after Ross Knight from the start and the pair were at the quarter in 23 1/2, and the half in 1:00 1/2. This was a killing clip, for although Ross Knight died away and allowed the Earl to pass the third quarter in 32 1/2, the gray stallion had nothing left to stall off his black rival's rush from the head of the stretch home.

Cox had taken a lot of care of Ess H. Kay, so that when he set sail he could tramp better than a two-minute gait. The mile was in 2:04 1/2, very fast for the day. The next trip was two seconds slower, Ess H. Kay again winning by outpacing Earl Jr. from the seven-eighths pole. The last quarter was in 27 1/2.

Billy Burk found Dudie Archdale away at form, but was hard put to win from Grace Grille. The son of Silent Brook just needed the old mare out in 2:04 1/2.

This mile looks now as though it would send the C. K. G. Billings cup to James Stone Ford farm. The trophy is for the fastest mile in a race by a trotter during the meeting, with one of the conditions that in case of a tie it shall go to the owner of the younger horse. Last week Grace Grille also raced in 2:04 1/2, but as she is 12 years of age and Ford only 6, the name of J. Howard Ford is almost certain to go on the cup as the program hardly offers another trotter up to beating 2:04.

The 2:06 pace, which was started on Monday, went to the good 4-year-old Stinson, Walter Coenato, who won the seventh heat in 2:07 1/2. Coenato's 2:06 1/2 is the fastest seventh heat ever paced. The winner is a son of the Massachusetts bred and owned grandchild of Hinch, Coenato, 2:11 1/2, and cost his present owner $50.

Lord Brussels won the 2-year-old trot not because he had more speed than Morgan, but for the reason that his breaks were not as costly as those of the favorite.

The 2:10 pace was a five-heat duel between a son and daughter of the late Alcyon, Peter, 2:10. The winner, Peter, a long-striding gray gelding, had the more speed, but was very unsteady. The summary:

One of the Oddest Plays of the Series Came When
Murray Was Caught While Sliding to Second

MURRAY OUT AT SECOND
AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—One of the oddest plays of the world's series was seen in the third inning of the sixth game. Murray drove a ripping single to right field, but he was too low an estimate on Hooper's throwing ability and attempted to stretch it to a double. Hooper made a good throw to Yerkes, and Murray, seeing that the play would be close, "hit the dirt" in sliding he went feet first between third baseman of the Red Sox, and it was thought that at the far corner the Bostonians had a decided advantage. But in the first six games Herzog made nine hits for a percentage of .425, while Gardner garnered four for a percentage of .190. Herzog had ten outs and 14 assists to his credit, while Gardner had six outs and eight assists. Neither had made an error.

Tuxedo will Win Your Favor—as No other Tobacco Can.

Tuxedo Tobacco has made pipe-smoking popular among the most prominent men in America today—leaders in the various professions—because it makes pipe-smoking possible to them.

Well-known lawyers, doctors, ministers, lecturers, actors, singers, writers and others, testify that Tuxedo Tobacco exerts a soothing influence on their throats, and affords them the highest degree of enjoyment.

WIND INTERFERED WITH PLAYING

In the World's Series Game at Fenway Park Yesterday—
Devore the Star

(By Staff Reporter)
Once more, the red-stockinged "Jack the Giant Killer" of the Fenway field did not as was expected, or at least hoped, effect a glorious end to the battle for the world's supremacy in baseball, when they cruised into Fenway Park yesterday afternoon in the seventh game of the far-famed world's series.

A glance at the number of runs and hits accorded to each team is in itself a fair though concise story of the contest. The visitors wielded their war strength of 16 safe clouds and on the strength of these, together with several loose features in the playing, they stored up 11 runs. Boston at the end of the last of those disastrous nine innings could find but four small runs on its account book for they had solved the Tessaau puzzle but nine times.

It was a rare treat to watch that plucky and fast "Little Giant" Devore, in action, covering an extent of territory that would seem to require at least two men and spilling more than one promising drive that appeared to have a face value of three or four bases.

Gardner's home run in the second was a pretty hit, bouncing over the heads of the crowd at the beginning of the center field bleachers, and it created a sensation, even though aided by a none too gentle squall.

But even one who is not devoted to the sole task of dashing off baseball chronicles can see something in a world's series game. There are many things aside from the playing itself which are really deserving of comment. It is seldom that one has an opportunity of seeing so enormous a gathering of wildly shouting and cheering people as attend these great battles of the diamond.

Before noon the bleachers began to fill with eager fans and long before the umpires summoned the men to their positions, there was hardly room to squeeze in one more rooter. They avers, will be peculiarly fitted to the needs of the charge. Indeed, a unique feature to be introduced will cause all who know Mr. Cristó to wonder why it had never before been tried out. Everybody needs a bodyguard when it is explained. This latest training stunt, although, as has been said, a novelty to Lowell's famous athlete, has been known to the "select" for many centuries.

Mr. Hackett during his managerial career ever since his beneficial efforts were realized by him during his college days.

This training secret became known to him in a rather singular manner, and had been an ardent student of the classics. It appears during his residence at the university and in delving into those wells of knowledge had acquired certain information regarding the system followed by the crack Olympic athletes in their preparation for those sacred games. This system, he states, is based first and foremost on a strict adherence to the principle of the daily bath.

Accordingly he will see that Cristó follows in the footsteps of his Olympic predecessors, and for this purpose will avail himself of the use of the Concord river, into which every morning his charge will take exhilarating plunges that will serve to prime him for the severest contest even indulged in by any athlete, whether that gentleman hails from the plains of Marathon or those of the Plains.

Affects Other Cases
WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The department of justice yesterday asked the supreme court of the United States to advance for hearing the appeal from the decision of the Massachusetts federal court adverse to the government in the instant case of Shinn v. Winslow and others on charges of restraining trade in shoe machinery.

Solicitor General Elliott pointed out in a brief that the supreme court of the United States would have an important hearing upon other proceedings against the so-called "Shoe Machinery Trust."

The Pawtucket Brotherhood of the Pawtucket Congregational church held its first meeting of the season last evening and the attendance was encouragingly large. The organization's new leader, Prof. A. Stewart of the Textile school faculty presided.

Prof. Stewart in addressing the members told of the plans for the fall and winter activities and these received the hearty approval of all who were present.

The principal feature of last night's gathering was an address on Japan by Dr. T. B. Smith of this city in which he dwelt upon the tragic end of General Nogi and his wife, telling also of political tangles in that country. Dr. Smith also exhibited to his hearers a very fine collection of Japanese swords of considerable value, which he himself gathered. Some of the weapons dated back to the year 1200 or thereabouts. They are wonderful examples of the skill of the metal workers and forgers and are also of interest historically.

In talking of the suicide of General Nogi as regarded by the Japanese, Dr. Smith said that according to the people of that nation, the deed was performed, and not as we say committed in the sense of being unlawful. A man who has been dishonored is not allowed to use this method of escaping punishment and shame, but it is rather for one who has met with failure in his labors or who has acted in a manner not in accordance with the ideas of his superior. Loyalty to the dead emperor was the motive for General Nogi's self-inflicted death.

The lecturer related a number of stories illustrative of the peculiar ideas of the Jap and those who had the pleasure of hearing him, certainly left the place with a more comprehensive knowledge of the life and customs of this interesting race.

After the talk refreshments were served and those present inspected the collection of swords. A musical program completed the evening's entertainment.

The officers of the Pawtucket Brotherhood for the season are: President, A. Stewart; vice president, W. S. Mansfield; treasurer, Frank Hoyt; secretary, George Varnum; membership committee, A. H. Marshall, N. E. Penney and H. A. Varnum; executive committee, Fred Harris, L. A. Ayer and J. A. Armstrong.

WOMAN FOUND LEGALLY DEAD

Awaits Decision of the Court as to Whether She is Really Alive

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—Miss Mabel E. Allen, a woman of middle age, appeared in the Suffolk probate court yesterday before Judge Grant to prove that she is still alive, despite the fact that the same court, the Massachusetts supreme judicial court and the United States supreme court have declared that she is legally dead.

Miss Allen, who is a great-granddaughter of Jonathan May, an old-time Boston merchant, will not know until Judge Grant hands down his decision later whether she is really alive and entitled to share in the $2000 estate of Jonathan May with five of her cousins.

The May estate consists of a sum of money paid to Jonathan May by the United States government under the French spoliation claims.

Miss Allen told the court that she has recently been the housekeeper for a lawyer named Fred P. Beckwith, of 250 Henry street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who is appearing as her counsel. She declared that a letter carrier in Brooklyn showed her a newspaper clipping which stated that under the absentee statute she had been declared dead at the end of 14 years. Miss Allen's life history as far as she could remember was given as follows:

"I was born in May, 1870, in St. Mark's place, New York city, and my parents, Joseph C. and Emma R. Allen, moved to New Haven when I was a few years of age. Later we moved to New York again, and I attended St. Mark's Episcopal school at 20 South Washington square, New York, until I was 17. Then we returned to New Haven and my father entered the Soldiers' home. I went to live with an aunt, Miss Julia Carlisle, in New Haven, where I remained until 1892. Then I became a teacher at St. Mark's until 1892."

Miss Allen then told how she had become a housekeeper in various New York and New Haven households, and for the last five years a nurse in New York city.

Arguments were heard yesterday afternoon and Judge Grant reserved his decision.

DRIVER BADLY BURNED

Wagon in Flames Rushed
Through Streets

WINCHESTER, October 15.—Carl Truax, aged 20, of Kendall street, employed by Kelley and Hawes, was severely burned about the face and hands and inhaled some smoke yesterday, which left him in a serious condition at the Winchester hospital.

Truax was removing a load of excelsior and rubbish in an express wagon to the town dump on Linden street. When he started to dump the load the excelsior took fire, burned up quickly and set fire to the material in the wagon. Soon the wagon was in flames. The horse became frightened and ran through the streets, dragging the flaming wagon and load behind it. Truax held the reins and went with it to the town stables near by.

Panned by the wind the fire blazed up and Truax was seriously burned about the face and hands and he also inhaled considerable smoke.

An alarm from box 41 was sounded and the fire department extinguished the flames. Truax was removed to the Winchester hospital.

THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY A REUNION WAS HELD

Of the American Anti-By the Telephone Comquarian Society pany Employees

WORCESTER, Oct. 15.—The president of the United States and the British ambassador were among those today to join in the observance of the 100th anniversary of the American Anti-Quarian Society, one of the oldest organizations of its kind in this country. An address by President Taft at a banquet tonight was expected to be a feature of the celebration. Historical authorities of this and a number of foreign countries attended the meetings. An address reviewing the work of the society was delivered at the opening session by former Congressman Washburn. Speakers at a meeting later in the day included Senator Lodge, British Ambassador Bryce and former Gov. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania.

The chief object of the society is the collection and preservation of materials for a study of American antiquities. One of the leading plates buried by Deceleron in 1783 to assert the claims of French jurisdiction in the new world is one of the relics of the society's museum.

1911 Gold Yield

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—An official estimate of the production of gold and silver in the United States in 1911, made in a joint statement of the bureau of the mint and the geological survey yesterday, placed the totals at 4,637,053 fine ounces of gold, valued at $95,509,000 and 60,393,400 fine ounces of silver valued at $2,215,700.

The value of the gold produced was greater than any year except 1909, which was $95,673,400. These figures compare with $96,269,100 in gold and $20,514,500 of silver in 1910. California led all the states in gold, with $19,925,500 and Nevada in silver, with $7,120,400.

Ordered to Receive Fleet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The battleships Alabama and Illinois and the cruisers Salem and Baltimore have been ordered to duty with the Atlantic reserve fleet. The destroyer Beale, recently damaged in collision with a barge in the Delaware river after repairs will join the fifth division of the torpedo flotilla in the November target practice in Hampton roads. The torpedo boat Rowan, after 19 years' service with the Pacific fleet, has been placed out of commission.

H. A. MCCOY

Intendent of the Lowell district of the Telephone company.

The gathering took place in Odd Fellows temple, Middlesex street, at 8.30 o'clock at which time all sat down to a hearty repast. At the close of the meal Toastmaster Samuel T. Cushing, president of the Lowell chapter, turned to order and in a few appropriate remarks welcomed his fellow members and then outlined the work of the society for the fall. He then introduced Mr. Philip Hartley of Boston, president of the parent society, who spoke on the work of the society and the benefits to be derived through it, both in a social and educational manner.

The speaker of the evening, however, was Mr. H. A. McCoy, superintendent of the division plant department, who read an interesting paper on "Telephone Business, Past and Present." The lecture was listened to with great interest as it was very instructive to the large gathering, treating on the work of the telephone from 1838 to 1912. The lecture was followed by a general discussion by the different members of the society, each seeking information in his own line of work.

Among the guests were brother members from Lawrence, Haverhill, Newburyport, Manchester, Concord and Nashua.

The committee in charge of the affair was headed by E. A. Robinson and was warmly congratulated for the success of the evening. In the latter part of the evening "Nick" Conway, performing at Keith's theatre this week, rendered several songs. He was warmly applauded and a vote of thanks was extended him.

Everybody up, Thurs. eve, Lincoln.

FELL SIX STORIES

Man Crashed Through Two Skylights at Copley Square Hotel and Was Only Slightly Injured

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—Falling six stories through an airshaft and landing heap in the middle of the dining room of the Copley Square hotel early yesterday, a guest who registered at the hotel as W. A. Millan of Pawtucket, R. I., had a remarkable escape from death. He is now at the Massachusetts General hospital suffering from numerous cuts and bruises. In his fall Millan crashed through two skylights and snapped off a wooden beam.

In the early morning, when the corridors were nearly deserted, patients and employees were aroused by a sudden crashing of glass. Groans issued from the dining room on the first floor and employees rushed in.

Not far from the centre of the room lay the man who suffered a large hole in the colored glass skylight told the story of his escape.

Dr. Goodall was immediately called and after a short examination ordered the man taken to the Massachusetts General hospital. It was discovered on closer examination that the victim was suffering from various cuts and bruises to his head and body, but no traces of internal injuries could be found.

Just how the accident happened is a mystery. It is believed, however, that Millan walked in his sleep and fell into the airshaft.

CHELMSFORD

The final meetings for registration before the November election will be held by the board of registrars at the following times and places: Monday evening, Oct. 21, from 7.30 to 9 o'clock, at West Chelmsford; Tuesday evening, Oct. 22, from 7.30 to 9 o'clock, at East Chelmsford; Thursday evening, Oct. 24, from 7.30 to 9 o'clock, at North Chelmsford; and on Saturday, Oct. 26, from 12 o'clock, noon, to 10 p. m., at the Centre.

That the fall hunting season is on in full swing is now evident from the noise of firearms which is heard daily in the surrounding woods. Edward J. Robbins, town clerk, has issued about 70 hunter's licenses, the greater number of which were to local gunners, and these hold good until the first of January. It would seem from the banging of the guns that all those who took out their permits are now taking advantage of them. The open season on deer this year begins at sunrise on Nov. 17 and closes at sunset on Nov. 23. Only shotguns may be used and dogs may not be used.

Charles E. Parkhurst has begun work on the lot of land recently bought by him from Mrs. H. Fletcher. The lot has a frontage of 125 feet and extends back to a distance of 112 feet. Foundations will be put in at once for the erection of a house and barn.

SWEEP FROM THE DECK

Whorf Lost His Life off
Egg Rock

LYNN, Oct. 15.—During a heavy northwest squall yesterday, with the wind blowing 50 miles an hour, Charles E. Whorf, aged 43, of 33 Orient court, Swampscott, a fisherman, was swept from the deck of a fishing sloop off Egg Rock and drowned.

A companion, John Kennedy of 16 Orient court, Swampscott, who vainly attempted to rescue Whorf, lost an ear from the force of the wind when the sloop was tossed about by the waves.

The sloop, Gen. Cleaves, which was anchored by Lowville Wharf, a son of the drowned man, after his father had disappeared, parted her anchor line and was fast following the drifting dory when the lifesaving crew boarded the craft. No attempt was made to recover the body of Whorf because of the depth of the water.

Whorf, his son and Kennedy sailed out of Swampscott less than an hour before the squall struck. Whorf saw the assistance of his companions, lowered the dory and tried to make the beach when the squall struck the vessel. The great force of the wind caused the beam to swing about and it struck Whorf and knocked him overboard. Under the lee side of the sloop was a dory and into this Kennedy jumped, intending to row around the sloop and rescue Whorf. A few seconds after he had entered the dory he lost an ear and was unable to navigate the small boat with the single ear. He removed his coat, hoisted it on the ear and in this way attracted the attention of the look-out in the tower of the lifesaving station, three miles away.

When the distress signal was hoisted the big surfboat of the station was launched and, with the wind at their backs, the crew made fast time and three miles beyond Egg Rock they managed to reach Kennedy. He was taken aboard, the dory taken in tow, and then the lifesavers started after the sloop. They overtook the sloop and brought the craft to the lifesaving station.

Whorf was a native of Swampscott and a fisherman for years. He is survived by a wife and a large family of children, of which the boy, who was with him yesterday, is the eldest.

Just prior to the discovery of the plight of Kennedy the lifesaving crew returned from a row to Bass Point, where the sloop Tortoise had dragged her anchors and gone aground.

RED SOX WIN THE SERIES

RED SOX, WINNERS OF WORLD'S SERIES WITH NEW YORK GIANTS

Defeated New York Giants Today by Score of 3 to 2

FENWAY PARK, Boston, Oct. 16.—The Boston American league club won the world's championship for 1912 today by defeating the New York National league team by a score of 3 to 2 in a thrilling contest before 20,000 people. The Red Sox were on a run behind when they came to the bat at the end of the ninth inning. A sharp hit by Speaker's long fly put the batter on second. After Hooper had tied out, Speaker came through with a single and Engle rushed across the plate with the tying score. On the throw-in Speaker went to second, Yerkess having gone to third on the play. Lewis was purposely passed in order that a force play could be made in the plate. Then Gardner came to the plate. The stands were in a turmoil of excitement. Gardner caught an in-bowling on the end of his bat and sent it to Devore, whose throw to the plate was not while a catch Yerkess as he went over the plate with the winning run. The crowd rushed on the field and cheered the home players. Some spectators addressed an insulting remark to Mathewson and there was an exchange of blows. Mathewson was on his way to the Red Sox bench to congratulate Stahl on his victory. The crowd pressed about Mathewson and boxed him on the back for his clever play.

Bedient and Wood pitched effectively for Boston. The umpire first declared a hit but reversed his decision after he saw that Lewis had dropped Devore's throw. Lewis struck out. No runs. One hit, one error. The official scorer has decided that Speaker's hit was a single.

Second Inning
New York—Merkle struck out. Herzog flew out to Speaker. Meyers was safe when Gardner let the batter's slow roller go between his feet. Fletcher singled to center. Meyers taking second, on a throw from Cady to Wagner to catch Meyers napping, the New York catcher turned and ran to third and was safe when Gardner dropped Wagner's throw. Fletcher took second on the play. Mathewson flew out to Speaker. No runs. One hit. Two errors.

Third Inning
Boston—Gardner walked to first. It was Mathewson's first base on balls in 21 innings. Gardner was forced at second when Doyle took Stahl's ground-er and tossed to Fletcher. Wagner singled to left. Stahl took second on the play. Cady sent a high fly to Merkle. Bedient out. Doyle to Merkle. No runs. One hit. No errors.

Fourth Inning
New York—Devore walked. Bedient was unsteady and unable to locate the plate. Doyle was out. Gardner to Stahl. Devore went to second. Snodgrass went out to Stahl, unassisted. Devore went to third. Devore scored on Murray's two base hit to left. Speaker made a great try for the ball. Merkle out. Wagner to Stahl. One hit. One hit. No errors.

Fifth Inning
New York—Devore got an infield hit. The ball bounding on Bedient's leg toward the home plate. Devore was out stealing Cady to Wagner. Devore was hit. Red Sox on first on base. Doyle flew out to Hooper. It was the most remarkable catch of the whole world series. Barring with the ball he caught it just as it was about to pass in the crowd in right field. The catch prevented a home run. Snodgrass singled to left. Murray fouled out to camp. No runs. Two hits. No errors.

Sixth Inning
New York—Merkle sent high fly to Hooper. Herzog out. Wagner to Stahl. Who picks the shortstop's low throw out of the dirt. Meyers walked to first. Fletcher struck out. No runs. No hits. No errors.

Seventh Inning
New York—Mathewson sent up a high ball which Stahl dropped. Mathewson singled to center. Mathewson was forced at second when Bedient took Devore's bunt and threw to Wagner. Doyle flew out to Wagner. Devore stole second. Snodgrass out. Gardner to Stahl. No runs. One hit. One error.

Eighth Inning
New York—Wood went to the box for Boston. Murray out. Stahl, un-

RED SOX AND GIANTS PLAYED FINAL GAME AT FENWAY

PARK TODAY
FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Oct. 16.—The New York Nationals and the Boston Americans clashed this afternoon in the final battle that was to return the winner of the world's championship for 1912. Seven times the two teams had met in the world's series and each had won three victories, while one game had resulted in a tie.

The Red Sox had apparently won the series but the Giants forced the attack until they tied the series and today

MR. BROWN ATTACKS MAYOR THE SUPERIOR CIVIL COURT

Uses Abusive Language and Said Case of Lyons vs. Bay State Street Railway Company on Trial Today

"Punch in Snoot" Would Do Him Good

There was a sensation at city hall this forenoon when some hard names were called. The storm broke at a conference held in the mayor's reception room and the principals were Mayor George H. Brown and Commissioner Edward J. Brown. The storm broke at a conference held in the mayor's reception room and the principals were Mayor George H. Brown and Commissioner Edward J. Brown.

The conference was called for the purpose of carrying out some conclusion relative to a sewer pipe contract. At the meeting of the municipal council, held yesterday afternoon, Commissioner Brown informed the council that Edward Cawley, who had the contract to supply the sewer pipe, would be unable to supply the Portland pipe called for in the contract, because of the fact that the Portland pipe plant had been burned out and the company is unable to supply any more pipe. Mr. Cawley was ready to furnish Akron pipe which is generally conceded to be the equal of Portland pipe, but Mr. Brown said he did not want to make the change without the sanction of the municipal council.

It was finally decided to let the matter go over to this morning and to ask Mr. Cawley to meet the council in conference.

When the matter was come into this morning it was discovered that the commissioner of streets and highways, the city engineer and the purchasing agent have all to say about it and it was up to them to say whether a substitute pipe might be used. Mr. Brown stated that the municipal council had to do with all such contracts and that the council was greater than any department. The mayor agreed that the council was greater than any department but he said the council could not act in violation of a contract.

How the Trouble Began

Commissioner Brown then spoke of the proposed water-proofing and surfacing of the East Merrimack street and Cambridge street bridges, as recommended by Engineer John H. Brown. He wanted to let the work out by contract. Both jobs would amount to about $250,000. The mayor said he would not let any such contract because the city has now a concrete plant of its own and he said the work should be done by the city. Mr. Brown said he had not had the necessary appliances to do the work.

"You have a concrete plant and you have good men. I can see no reason why you shouldn't do the work," said the mayor.

Mr. Brown thanked the mayor for his compliment as it applied to his men, and then the mayor said the commissioner involved in a little joking that became serious. In a second and the commissioner "went to" the mayor with hammer and tongs.

"You're a punkard," he said, "and I want to punch a little into you who was a punkard."

At this point the mayor called sharply to Commissioner Barrett, who stood at the door. "Mr. Barrett you had better call in the gallery as Mr. Brown has something to say for their benefit." The other members, realizing that there was no further business, withdrew.

"You're a punkard in name only, and you're an punkard in deed," was the next outbreak to Commissioner Brown. The mayor replied to the commissioner and said: "You're a punkard in name only, and you're an punkard in deed."

This provoked Mr. Brown, who appeared to be in a rage. The street commissioner called the mayor a hard name and uttered his trademark of the people at city hall.

A third one on the outside suggested a walk to the city hall to see the mayor. The crowd, which was growing, followed the crowd to the front of the city hall.

"You're a ——— and a ———. You have been trying since the first of the year to put in on the defensive, but I'll show you the people have not been your friends. (More applause by the mayor.) I will make you look like a two-cent piece before I get through with you," continued Mr. Brown, and the mayor again applauded.

A punch in the snoot would do you all the good in the world," said the commissioner, as he left the reception room, and the mayor continued to applaud. Thus the conference closed.

GOV. WILSON
To Review a Great Parade on Broadway, New York, on Saturday, November Second

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Gov. Wilson will review a parade on Saturday, November 2, which promises to be the biggest democratic demonstration seen in this city since the election and campaign of 1892. Mayor Charles F. Murphy, Senator Sulzer and Governor Marshall have been asked to help him.

The Woodrow Wilson College Men's League had projected a parade for Saturday, winding up with a speech by Gov. Wilson in Madison Square Garden. But the democratic national committee got into the game, proposed a great combination parade for Saturday before election and got the league's consent to a postponement. Gov. Wilson will be here on next Saturday, but probably his only speech will be in the Brooklyn Academy of Music at night.

The route of the parade will be from Bowling Green up Broadway to Wall street, thence to Fifth avenue, then down to the city hall and up to the city hall.

National Chairman McCombs thinks that 5000 men from New Jersey will participate. Parade headquarters will be at the Imperial hotel.

STABLE BURNED
Polo Ponies, Hunters and Steeplechasers Rescued at Hempstead, L. I.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—F. Ambrose Clark's racing stable at Hempstead, L. I., was destroyed by fire last night. All of the fifteen polo ponies, cross-country hunters and steeplechasers were rescued. The loss is $25,000.

The stable is near the main house of Mr. Clark's estate, which was formerly the James L. Ketchikan place. There was a fire in the stable when the fire was discovered in the hayloft. They worked hard to get out the horses, among which was Meadow sweet, the filly that ran away from a field of sixteen last Saturday at Pippen Rock and which may be sent to England. Once the animals were safely out they tried to get back and the rescuers had their hands full. The property managed to run three courses in the rescue work.

Mr. Clark was at a dinner given by Hamilton Hadden, but he and Mr. Hadden, E. F. von Stach and employees from the estates of Mrs. Butler Dunham, John White and Oliver W. Bird reached the stable in time to assist in the rescue work.

The volunteer fire department had to run two and one-half miles and by the time they got there the stable was in ashes.

LOCAL GREEKS
Left This City Last Night to Enlist in the Grecian Army Will Leave New York Thursday

Eleven local Greeks left last night for Greece to enroll in the Grecian army to fight against the Turks in the Balkan-Turkish conflict. The party joined another group of Greeks from Manchester and Nashua and went directly to New York, where they will be in the Thompson building, which leaves Thursday afternoon.

NORTH CHELMSFORD
Principal Teacher, Mr. J. H. Brown, will be in the school building, Nov. 1. The school is now open for the year.

The registration of voters for the town of North Chelmsford will be held Thursday, Oct. 24 at the town hall from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Ground is being broken for the new rubber factory, a large building which is being employed and the work is progressing very rapidly.

Miss Grace Sullivan, daughter of the late Mr. Sullivan, was elected the president of the school at the Lowell Normal school.

A Farewell Party
A very pleasant gathering was held last evening at St. Patrick's Hall, when a farewell party was given Mrs. Anna Cullen, who is about to become the bride of Mr. Kilroy of this city.

About 75 of her loving friends gathered in the reception hall and at 8 o'clock Mrs. Cullen was given a pleasant surprise. She was presented a costly china closet as a token of the love and esteem in which she is held by each and all of them.

recover damages and that the defendant company was negligent.

He claimed that the plaintiff was after coming from church on Sunday morning, and that he went directly to the car line and boarded the car, as the plaintiff testified on the witness stand. He told of the pain that the alleged injuries caused him and asked that he be sufficiently compensated for his sufferings. The plaintiff testified on the stand that he had lost considerable weight since the accident and that the loss was due to the alleged injuries that he received.

Court adjourned at 1 o'clock for dinner, after which the judge delivered his charge to the jury.

The jury in the case of Lyons vs. the Bay State Street Railway Co., an action of tort, this afternoon returned a verdict for the defendant company. Lawyer John Butler appeared for the plaintiff, while the defendant company was represented by Trull and Weir.

The next case on the docket, which was called yesterday, during the interval of the above case, and will go on trial at the completion of the case of Lyons vs. the Bay State Street Railway company is that of John E. Bartlett of Lawrence against Win. P. McCarthy, administrator of the last will and testament of Margaret Finnegan, late of Lowell, for defendant labor alleged to have been rendered for deceased previous to her death. The above case goes out. Farley & Tierney appeared for the plaintiff and Korman & Kiley for the defendant.

"PICKANINNIES" GAVE A FINE MINSTREL SHOW

Soloists Generously Applauded—Good Jokes by End Men

JOSEPH P. CARROLL
Organizer of Company

The "Pickaninnies," a recently formed minstrel troupe, gave a very pleasing performance at Associate Hall last evening. Despite the fact that the organization held only six rehearsals the show was given with remarkable smoothness, and all members of the company were heard to great advantage.

The excellence of the production reflects great credit on those in charge, and all were warmly congratulated at the conclusion of the concert. The company was organized by Joseph P.

Carroll, who was one of the "ends," and his work was one of the features of the show. Commissioner James E. Donnelly, acted as interlocutor, and he proved to be the right man in the right place. He made an ideal middle-man, and was responsible in a large measure for the success of the show.

William H. Way, a musical director, and he, too, deserves great credit for the manner in which the show was presented. Miss Anna Murphy presided at the piano and acted as accompanist for the singers, and her work assisted greatly in the excellence of the performance. The others in the show all contributed their share to the success that the performance secured.

The program opened shortly after eight o'clock, and when the draperies were drawn aside, the young men were neatly dressed, together with the beautiful decorations of the background presented a most picturesque spectacle. The end men were "loud" sections, while the members of the chorus wore dark trousers, white shirt waists and natty black ties. The members of the chorus occupied seats arranged in tiers while the interlocutor, soloist and end men formed a semi-circle in the front row.

The stage itself was prettily decorated. The prevailing color scheme of the background was white and crimson, with touches of green and black, while large American flags suspended from the ceiling added considerably to the attractiveness of the platform.

The overture was given with great vim, and embraced a number of the latest selections that were well arranged, and at the conclusion of the number the performers were handsomely applauded. When the applause subsided End Men Carroll, McNamara, Chapell and Critchley pulled a number of jokes that hit members of the company as well as a number in the audience. They also interpreted a number of witty sayings through the entire program, that met with the approval of those present.

"Dreams, Just Dreams," was the next number, this being given by William Wilson, who was well received. "Ragtime Soldier Man," was rendered by End Men McNamara, and he made a fine hit. "That's How I Need You" was cleverly given by Leonard Knapp. "Two Got the Finest Man," an end song by Michael Critchley, was one of the big hits of the evening, and during the number the other ends assisted in its success by answering the singer and playing the bones and tambos, with fine effect. "Any Old Port in a Storm," the ever popular bass solo, was given in a very creditable manner by Guy Johnson, who possessed a deep voice that he used to good advantage. "Marching Minstrel" was given in a remarkably clever manner by Master Alfred Fletcher, of St. Anne's boys' choir. He won tremendous applause and was obliged to give several encores.

"Somebody Else is Getting It" was another hit, especially so when he exhibited a lemon, while giving his last chorus, "Mine," a beautiful composition, was beautifully given by John Wilby. "Where Are You Going?" was the final end song, this being given by Joe Carroll, Lowell's infatigable extemporaneous humorist, and he made a decided hit, receiving a great hand.

The finale with solo, "Glory," by James Roane, concluded a minstrel program that was very enjoyable and exceptionally well given. Mr. Roane's solo pleased immensely, and the work of the chorus was a bright feature of the entire production.

The members of the chorus were as follows: Leo Regnier, Edward Couty, Frank Marshall, S. Marshall, H. J. Sullivan, T. Boyle, T. Mann, G. Mann, S. Callahan, W. P. McLaughlin, W. Craig, T. Donovan, A. O'Neill, H. Bradley, J. Hogan, W. Henry, J. McCard, J. Hardy, F. Sandler, J. Spillane, W. Conner, T. McAndrews, O. Olson, T. Kelly, P. McDonald, P. Warren, E. Lanctot, R. Burns, W. Gilbride, A. Calley, H. Connor, J. Dillon, W. Donovan, W. Gilbride, R. McLaughlin.

After the show the floor was cleared and general dancing to the excellent music of the Colonial orchestra, John Donnelly director, was enjoyed until midnight. The floor was in charge of Floor Marshal Walter J. McNeill, who managed the dancing in a most satisfactory manner. He was assisted by the members of the chorus who acted as aids.

BOYS' AUTO RACE

To Be Conducted by the Boys' Club of Pawtucketville and Prizes Offered

A pushable automobile race is to be held in Pawtucketville Saturday, the race course being the smooth paving in the Minuteman road. All boys of the city, fifteen years of age or under are invited to enter. Three suitable prizes will be given to the first three drivers. The race is to be held under the auspices of the Pawtucketville Boys' club and will be one of the many features to be held in connection with the outing by the club on that day.

OPERATIVE INJURED

Her Hand Caught in Machine and Tops of Two Fingers Were Torn Off This Morning

Karoline Setuta suffered a painful accident while at work in the spinning room of the Hamilton mills about 8:30 o'clock this morning. She was operating a fly machine when her left hand got caught in the machine and the tops of two of the fingers were torn off. The ambulance was summoned and she was taken to the Lowell hospital, where the wound was dressed. She resides at 10 Amory street.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES WERE DISCUSSED

Meeting Was Held in the First Trinitarian Church

OTIS W. BUTLER
Who Spoke for Republican Candidate

The vestry of the First Trinitarian church in Button street was the scene of a rather interesting meeting last night and while the attendance was limited to a mere handful of men there was no dearth of interest. It was a rather unusual meeting, too, and the speakers were supposed to tell why they believed in this or that political party. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood of the church and the subject of the meeting was "Presidential Preference." The different political parties were asked to send representatives. Hon. James B. Casey was sent down from Humphrey O'Sullivan's headquarters and Mr. Casey said he was rather astonished when he received the assignment. He thought at first, he said, that it was a rally and he allowed that an O'Sullivan rally at the First Trinitarian church was going some.

Favored Socialist Party

Mr. Joseph MacDonald was introduced as the man to represent the Socialist party. Mr. MacDonald said he thought he was the wrong man for the job inasmuch as he was not affiliated with the Socialists of Lowell. He said, however, that he was in sympathy with the socialists and the party, and he thought that only through the channels of socialism could justice be done the human family. He said the socialist party was the only party that stood for common ownership and that common ownership was the solution of the great problem of today.

He said that it was the spirit of the socialist to build for the human family and that the socialist was opposed to the gigantic fortunes of the few. Mr. MacDonald devoted a great deal of his talk to the liquor traffic and painted word pictures of the poverty and despair that follows in its wake. He said that the liquor traffic was run for the benefit of the few and the curse and ruin of the many.

The Republican Party

Representative Otis W. Butler argued the case of the present administration and said there were many reasons why the present president should be re-elected. Mr. Butler read several paragraphs from a speech by Henry Cabot Lodge, which he said voiced his sentiments and he also read extracts from the Republican platform.

Sykes a Bull Moose

Richard K. Sykes told of his admiration for Theodore Roosevelt and of his devotion to principles declared by the progressives. He said he had abundant faith in the principles of the new party. There was a time when he thought pretty well of the G. O. P., but he allowed that new conditions call for new men, new methods and new departures. He said he did not feel as he was the right man in the right place. Another man had been selected to represent the progressive party at the meeting, but was unable to be present and the job, he said, was turned over to him. "If I can do nothing else," he said, "I can stand in the way of an assassin's bullet as did the great leader of the progressive party last night in Milwaukee."

Mr. Sykes' auditors, however, were patient and not a gun was aimed at him. "I feel," he said, "that a change is needed in the political makeup of this country today. The men who have been trying to run the politics of this country have made a bad job of it for the people at large. I am a Bull Moose. I feel that I have got on the right track and I want you to come along with me. Conditions are not what they should be and the quickest and best remedy for our ills is to join the progressive party."

Democratic Party

Hon. James B. Casey spoke in favor of Woodrow Wilson, the president and the democratic party in general. "Despite all that has been said I address you as fellow democrats," said Mr. Casey, "for the high cost of living has no respect for a man's political beliefs and the only way to accomplish a change is by voting the democratic ticket."

Mr. Casey expressed heartfelt sympathy for Calhoun Roosevelt and condemned in no uncertain terms the dastardly act that came so dangerously near ending the life of so great a man.

"The democratic party," said Mr. Casey, "stands for progress and the general betterment of conditions and if the principles of the democratic party are embodied into law they will bring the desired relief. I believe that the present spirit of unrest is due to the bungling administration of the republican party."

"I believe that our next president will be a democrat, because I believe that the voters have seen the light. They waited patiently for a glimpse of the alleged silver lining of the republican cloud, but the silver lining did not put in an appearance. The republican party has been humbugging the people, and the average voter has connected with that fact."

"I want to say to you that the democratic party is the progressive party, and that Woodrow Wilson stands for advancement and prosperity. I believe this is a year when you realize that there are many unjust laws on the statute books. The republican party has held the reins of government so long that it has become intoxicated with power and it has come to feel that there is no human agency strong enough to remove it. The republicans have preached revision of the tariff and told and retold that much abused story of the dinner pail. A former speaker referred to a panic under democratic administration some years ago but he neglected to speak of the number of panics that we have had under republican administration.

"The Payne-Aldrich tariff bill is still on the statute books and will remain until Woodrow Wilson is elected. The republicans have given you revision upward instead of downward. The democratic party does not believe in free trade, but we do believe in an honest revision that will not interfere with the trade interests of this country, but that will allow the manufacturers of this country to sell their products as cheap as they do abroad."

"If you would have the commodities of life placed in your hands at a much less cost than at present, then vote the democratic ticket. You have seen the purchasing power of the American dollar decrease under republican administration and if the time is not ripe for a change it never will be. The republican party looks back, not over a road paved with great achievement, but a highway of broken promises. I have not one word of criticism to make of the Bull Moose and I believe that they are honest in their beliefs. I have no word of criticism to make of the man who leaves the republican party. When he does so he simply acknowledges that he was on the wrong track and confession is good for the soul."

"The people who are now identified with the progressive party are promising a Utopia for the future and they are asking us to listen to yards of high sounding phrases, but there is no claim of theirs that is backed by achievement. We must not lose sight of the fact that Roosevelt was in power long enough to do things if he intended to do them and I ask why he didn't. We must not lose sight of the fact that Utopia had no peace and plenty, that Utopia had no progress, that Utopia had no industry, that Utopia had no commerce, that Utopia had no science, that Utopia The Talent Went Wrong in the
ent Events

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 16.—Bump after bump was the uncomfortable road traveled by the talent at the races yesterday afternoon. The wise ones had five chances to select a winner, but not once did they guess correctly.

Flower Direct, Dudie Archdale, Earl Jr. Magowan and Lucille Brooks fell by the wayside in succession before Walter Cochato, Billy Burk, Ess H. Kay, and Brussels and Pete.

It surely was a day of surprises as only Lord Brussels of the five winners was counted as having more than an outside chance before the word was given.

The black stallion Ess H. Kay, owned by James Tranter and driven by Walter Cox, was the real prize package in the grab bag. With Evelyn unable to start in the fast pace, first money was thought to be a gift for Earl Jr.

The gray horse had speed enough, but his driver wasted it, while Cox drove a capital race behind the son of Direct Hat.

Hopkins started Earl Jr. after Ross Knight from the start and the pair were at the quarter in 29 3/4, and the half in 1:00 1/4. This was a killing clip, for although Ross Knight died early and allowed the Earl to pass the third quarter in 32 1/4, the gray stallion had nothing left to stall off his black rival's rush from the head of the stretch home.

Cox had taken a lot of care of Ess H. Kay, so that when he set sail he could tramp better than a two-minute gait. The mile was in 2:05 1/4, very fast for the day. The next trip was two seconds slower. Ess H. Kay again winning by outpacing Earl Jr. from the seven-eighths pole. The last quarter was in 29 3/4.

Thirty-four found Dudie Archdale away off form, but was hard put to win from Grace Girle. The son of St. Louis just needed the old mare out in 2:04 1/4.

This mile looks now as though it would send the C. K. G. Billings cup to famous Stony Ford farm. The trophy is for the fastest mile in a race by a trotter during the meeting with one of the conditions that in case of a tie it shall go to the owner of the younger horse. Last week Grace Girle also raced in 2:05 1/4, but as she is 12 years of age and Ford is only 4 the name of J. Howard Ford is almost certain to go on the cup, as the program later of the American trotter up to beating 2:05.

The 2:06 pace, which was started on Monday, went to the good 4-year-old stallion, Walter Cochato, who won the seventh heat in 2:06 1/4, after Babo had shied the sixth heat. Cochato's 2:06 1/4 is the fastest seventh heat ever paced. The winner is a son of the Massachusetts bred and owned grandson of Bangor Cochato, 2:11 1/4, and cost his present owner $80.

Lord Brussels won the 2-year-old trot but because he had more speed than Magowan, but for the reason that his breaks were not as costly as those of the favorite.

The 2:10 pace was a five-heat duel between a son and daughter of the little Alyce pace, Alyce, 2:10. The winner, Pete, a long-striding gray gelding, had the more speed, but was very unsteady. The summary:

One of the Oddest Plays of the Series Came When
Murray Was Caught While Sliding to Second

AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—One of the oddest plays of the series was seen in the third inning of the sixth game. Murray drove a ripping single to right field, but he was too low an estimate on Hooper's throwing ability and attempted to stretch it to a double. Hooper made a good throw to Yerkes, and Murray, seeing that the play would be close, "hit the dirt." In third baseman of the Red Sox, and it was thought that at the far corner the Bostonians had a decided advantage. But in the first six games Herzog made nine hits for a percentage of .429, while Gardner garnered four for a percentage of .190. Herzog had ten outs and 13 assists to his credit, while Gardner had six outs and eight assists. Neither had made an error.

WIND INTERFERED WITH PLAYING

In the World's Series Game at Fenway Park Yesterday—
Devore the Star

(By Staff Reporter)

Once more the red-streaked "Jack the Giant Killer" of the Hub failed to fulfill the requirements of that title and did not as was expected, or at least hoped, effect a glorious end to the battle for the world's supremacy in baseball, when they crossed bats with the New Yorkers yesterday afternoon in Fenway park in the seventh game of the far-famed world's series.

A glance at the number of runs and hits accredited to each team is in itself a fair though concise story of the contest. The visitors started their war with 16 safe hits and on the strength of these, together with several loose features in the playing, they stored up 11 runs. Boston at the end of the last of those disastrous nine innings could find but four small runs on its account book for they had solved the Tetreau puzzle but nine times.

It was a rare treat to watch that plucky and fast "Little Giant," Devore, in action, covering an extent of territory that would seem to require at least two men and spilling more than one promising drive that appeared to have a face value of three or four bases.

Gardner's home run in the second was a pretty bit, bounding over the heads of the crowd at the beginning of the centre field bleachers, and it created a sensation, even though aided by a none too gentle zephyr.

But even one who is not devoted to the sole task of dashing off baseball chronicles can see something in a world's series game. There are many things aside from the playing itself which are really deserving of comment. It is seldom that the players have an opportunity of seeing so enormous a gathering of wildly shouting and cheering people as attend these great battles of the diamond.

Before noon the bleachers began to fill with eager fans and long before the umpires summoned the men to their positions, there was hardly room to squeeze in one more rooter. They are a discriminating race, those bleachers, more so than the inhabitants of any other stand on the grounds. They applaud the good plays and groan at a weak exhibition. There were several opportunities for effective groans at Fenway park yesterday afternoon. The royal rooters constitute the nobility, and yesterday the latter received a decided slam when they arrived at the field to find their reserved section gone. As an evidence of their royal wrath they started a parade and in doing so demolished a part of the fence which is located in front of the left field bleachers. A squad of mounted police and seemingly innumerable unmounted arms of the law hurried to the scene and quelled the revolt, herding the nobility into a small corner of the field and there standing guard over them to prevent further outbreaks and demonstrations.

A good deal of the loose playing was due to the ravages of the strong and playful west wind which caused great clouds of dust to rise before the infielders and this increased in earnest moments when accuracy was absolutely necessary to success. Moreover the air was cold and the sky clear and overclouded by turns. Conditions as a whole were not ideal for baseball.

The crowd was roughly estimated at 25,000 and there certainly seemed to be that many present. This afternoon's game is really the deciding game of this series which claims the distinction of requiring eight games. The fans rise in a body and cheer as the Red Sox trot out upon the diamond and in like manner do they applaud every play. What matters it to them if the dust fill their eyes or the cold breeze chill them through; they are witnessing a world's series contest and that is sufficient remuneration for this suffering. They will doubtless and the great baseball war and truce will be declared during the months of ice and snow.

HAS A NEW MANAGER

Hackett to Look After
Joe Cristo

Like all persons with extraordinary abilities, Joe Cristo, Lowell's Mercantile Marthoner, is at times inclined to be capricious. To speak in the momentary of equestrianism he likes to occasionally kick over the traces. Consequently, it was no surprise to his friends a month or so ago when he announced that he had had a tiff with his erstwhile manager and that he had placed his athletic fortunes into the keeping of another manager, namely, a certain Mr. Joseph Hackett.

This gentleman is said by those intimately acquainted with his abilities to be nothing less than a second Mike Murphy. Under his guiding eye and judicious management there has been developed in this city a number of sterling athletes, who have gloriously maintained the athletic prestige of Lowell in many a "racing race and many a strenuous fought contest. To the public in general this fact is, no doubt, not known but it is nevertheless a truth, and being so, bears eloquent testimony to the modesty of Lowell's latest aspirant for athletic honors.

"The man behind"—this is the significant title of Mr. Hackett—has mapped out for Cristo a course of training that will surely put him in the pink of condition, that will stand him in good stead in the important races in which he will shortly contest, and that will ultimately be the means of his adding his name from coast to coast as the athletic marvel of the 1912 season. A rigid system of training will be used by Mr. Hackett; one, which he avoids, will be peculiarly fitted to the needs of his charge. Indeed, a unique feature to be introduced will cause all who know Mr. Cristo to wonder why it had never before been tried out. Everybody nods with approval when it is explained. "Today" will doubtless and, although, as has been said, a novelty to Lowell's famous athletes, has been known to the "select" for many centuries, and has been effectively used by Mr. Hackett during his managerial career ever since. This training secret became known to him in a rather singular manner. He had been an ardent student of the classics, it appears, during his residence at the college and he had delving into those wells of knowledge had acquired certain information regarding the system followed by the crack Olympian athletes in their preparation for those sacred games. This system, he states, is based first and foremost on a strict adherence to the principle of the daily bath.

Accordingly he will see that Cristo follows in the footsteps of his Olympian predecessors, and for this purpose will avail himself of the use of the Concord river, into which every morning his charge will take exhilarating plunges that will serve to prime him for the severest contest ever indulged in by any athlete, whether that gentleman hails from the plains of Marathon or those of the Flats.

Addressed Pawtucket
Brotherhood

The Pawtucket Brotherhood of the Pawtucket Congregational church held its first meeting of the season last evening and the attendance was encouragingly large. The organization's new leader, Prof. A. Stewart of the Textile school faculty presided.

Prof. Stewart in addressing the members told of the plans for the fall and winter activities and these received the hearty approbation of all who were present.

The principal feature of last night's gathering was an address on Japan by Dr. T. B. Smith of this city in which he dwelt upon the tragic end of General Nogi and his wife, telling also of political tangles in that country. Dr. Smith also exhibited to his hearers a very fine collection of Japanese swords of considerable value, which he himself gathered. Some of the weapons dated back to the year 1300 or thereabouts. They are wonderful examples of the skill of the metal workers and forgers and are also of interest historically.

In talking of the suicide of General Nogi as regarded by the Japanese, Dr. Smith said that according to the people of that nation, the deed was performed, and not as we say committed in the sense of being unlawful. A man who has been dishonored is not allowed to use this method of escaping punishment and shame, but it is rather for one who has met with failure in his labors or who has acted in a manner not in accordance with the ideas of his superior. Loyalty to the dead emperor was the motive for General Nogi's self-inflicted death.

The lecturer related a number of stories illustrative of the peculiar ideas of the Japanese and those who had the pleasure of hearing him, certainly left the place with a more comprehensive knowledge of the life and customs of this interesting race.

After the talk refreshments were served and these present inspected the collection of swords. A musical program completed the evening's entertainment.

The officers of the Pawtucket Brotherhood for the season are: President, A. Stewart; vice president, W. S. Mansfield; treasurer, Frank Hoyt; secretary, George Vance; membership committee, A. H. Marshall, N. L. Penney and H. A. Varant; executive committee, Fred Harris, L. A. Ayer and H. A. Armstrong.

TARIFF TAX NOW AND IN COLONIAL DAYS

Perhaps it will not be amiss to refresh the memory of busy voters on a matter of taxation closely connected with the foundation of this republic and yet of interest as bearing upon the issues of the present campaign. It is the insistence of the British crown in taxing the colonies after they had declared that taxation without representation was tyranny. One tax after another had been removed until practically the only one left was that on tea. But why refresh these historical events? Simply to show that the American colonists rebelled against English rule on account of a tax not one-hundredth part as heavy as the republican party has been exacting for special interests during the past sixteen years.

The colonists were taxed merely for tea; but the American citizens of today are taxed to a far greater extent for practically everything they eat, everything they wear, every article of building material.

The colonists were very good tea drinkers, although they used considerable rum and hard cider as beverages; but when they found the British parliament removing the tax on tea for England and retaining the tax for the colonies there was indignation all through the colonies. The British felt that after knocking off the tax of sixpence a pound on tea in England, the price to the colonies would be that much lower and that in consequence there would be no objection to the moderate tax of three-pence or six cents a pound. But the colonists did not want cheap tea but untaxed tea.

The king of England was financially interested in the East India company which had 17,000,000 pounds of tea in English warehouses. The failure of the company would mean great financial loss for His Majesty and hence he insisted upon retaining the tea tax of three pence per pound on tea exported to America.

The colonists on hearing the final decision had a tea party which put a vast amount of King George's tea to soak in the waters of Boston harbor. This single act of revolt against tyranny resulted in the establishment of this republic and the expansion of England as a ruling power. The colonists insisted that taxation without representation was tyranny; but in our own day we find that even with representation taxation if oppressive is also tyranny.

The present campaign by the democratic party is waged against the principle of high protection as a special favor and standing on the ground that a tariff for revenue only will be sufficient protection against foreign competition. The constitution supports the democratic idea of the revenue tariff, and it is the idea that will restore the rule of justice and right.

When the British parliament removed the tea tax of sixpence a pound in England, it is asserted that the tea would be sold sixpence a pound cheaper to Americans. Today the same theory is true in the reverse sense that if a tariff of twelve cents a pound were imposed on tea, which is now on the free list, the price would be increased to that extent.

That is why we want the tariff removed from sugar, from beef, potatoes and many other articles of diet in which foreign competition is shut out by the high tariff.

This tariff extortion falls mainly upon the laboring classes, and yet the cost of labor forms a constantly decreasing ratio of the value of protected products.

Take for example women's clothing, the labor cost is 20.1 per cent, tariff 30 to 38 per cent; men's clothing labor cost 18.75 per cent, tariff 35.5 per cent; cotton goods, labor 21.14 per cent, tariff 53.4 per cent. These figures are computed by reliable authorities on the cost of production and the elements that regulate the price of such commodities.

The old delusion so ingeniously put forward by the republican party was, that if the big industries got the tariff duties they wanted, labor would be benefited indirectly by the increase of wages that would come as a result of the higher price and the fixed prosperity. The laboring classes know to what an extent they have been fooled by this species of bluff. But the people by this time should realize where their interests lie and they should use the ballot accordingly for their own protection.

The republican party, forecasting defeat, is frantically predicting that a democratic victory will mean idle factories and consequent starvation; but this is the last resort of a party now approaching dissolution, a party that in punishment for the manner in which it has plundered the people should be relegated to the oblivion which it has long ago deserved.

Democrats the country over and honest men of all classes will serve their own interests best by voting the democratic ticket on November 5, as by that means the tariff extortions will be overcome and the government of this republic restored to the control of the people.

STOP THE BORROWING HABIT

The municipal council will simply be doing its duty to the city as a whole if it refuses to borrow money to meet the current expenses of any department. The fact that Councilman Brown has exhausted his appropriation for the street department and that work there must be suspended, will teach future councilmen a lesson. The same for appropriation lavishly in the early months of the year, and now with the opening of the winter, he is without funds to do the necessary work. It is time to put an end to the reckless expenditure of money by officials who think they have nothing to do but call upon the city council for a loan to make up for their extravagance. Unless the policy of borrowing to meet current expenses be dropped, we may as well abandon the hope of ever getting the financial condition of the city back to a business basis. We must borrow for permanent improvements, and in view of the large interest amount to be met yearly, it is time to adopt a policy of retrenchment without any compromise. If this municipal board goes back to the old ways which led to the adoption of the new charter, it may expect to meet the emphatic disapproval of the taxpayers. It is to be regretted that any large number of employees are thrown out of work at this time, but it is the result of a short-sighted policy which degenerates by its proper title may be termed mismanagement.

LAWRENCE FEELS BETTER

The city of Lawrence is taking on new courage since the great demonstration of Saturday. The Lawrence American has seen fit to place across the head of the front page the motto "For God and Country." The L. W. W., however, still persist in working against the city by refusing to purchase in Lawrence what they can purchase in other cities until after Thanksgiving, the end of the period fixed by Mayor Seaton for wearing the American flag. That is a boycott of the merchants, and it will only embitter the feeling against the L. W. W.

If we are to judge from the expressions of some of the Lawrence papers, the L. W. W. is liable to make its residence in the down river city uncomfortable to its own members. Speaking of the situation the American says:

"No longer will we content us, as we used to, to hang their heads in shame at the mention of 'hanging' men, such law, or the belated influence of anarchy, the leaders, and we return thanks to the Great God who gave us the wisdom, the strength, and the ability to prove to the universe that the affairs of Lawrence will again be controlled by the law-abiding majority of its citizens."

Mr. Humphrey O'Sullivan's proposition for an emergency bill to remove the tariff from the leading necessities of life is a good one. One live congressman at Washington can set things moving, especially if he be a democratic apoplexy to democrats.

The New York Herald, in a five-page article, gives the result of a straw vote showing that Governor Wilson is far ahead of Taft and Roosevelt. That is not new to anybody.

Seen and Heard

A rather curious scene occupied the attention of a large number of people in Merrimack street the other day, when a woman endeavored to get her horse going without entering it from the post at the corner of that street. The woman came out of a store and took her seat in the carriage. She grabbed the reins and commanded her steed, but the latter refused to move. Without hesitating, what the carriage was, she got hold of her whip and lashed the animal, but again the horse refused to move, not before making an attempt at it. However, a young man who happened to be on the same side of the street as the carriage, with a crowd had gathered on the other side, quickly went to the woman's assistance and untied the horse. The woman somewhat contrived, thanked the young man and sped up the street.

Smith and Jones were discussing the question of who should be head of the house—the man or the woman. "I am head of my establishment," said Jones, "and I am the bread winner. Why shouldn't I be?" "Well," replied Smith, "before my wife and I were married we made an agreement that I should make the rules in all major things, my wife in all the minor."

"How has it worked?" queried Jones. Smith smiled. "So far," he replied, "no major matters have come up."

It is impossible to escape the joke of time, but there is a becoming as well as an unbecoming way of donning and wearing it.

On a warm spring morning some years ago the late Captain Paulkner of Texas was walking along the highroad when he met an old negro proceeding slowly toward the village store, in order to get his stock of groceries for the coming week.

"Well, Uncle Pimms," said the captain, "how are you?"

"Yes, sah; yes, sah; thank you, sah, Marse Paulkner; yes, sah," returned Uncle Pimms. "Ah, is feelin' good; Ah, muthly is feelin' fine. Ah

AWFUL ITCHING AND BURNING

Dandruff in Worst Form. Hair Began to Fall Out in Handfuls. Head Covered With Sores. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

27 North Ave., Attleboro Falls, Mass.—"I have been troubled for a long time with dandruff in its worst form. My scalp was covered with eruptions and my hair had begun to fall out in handfuls. I scratched my head so that it was covered with sores and at times these caused me much suffering by their bleeding. My scalp felt terribly nearly all the time even at night when the awful itching and burning sensation would awaken me from sound sleep. There was not a spot on my head free from the awful itching dandruff and the dandruff was so thick as to be plainly seen in my hair even when I had given it a thorough brushing.

"I tried countless so-called 'remedies' for it without deriving the least benefit from them. Then I decided to send for a free trial sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bought a full-sized box of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and at the end of a month I had not even a trace of dandruff left and never since have been troubled with it again. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me." (Signed) Miss Mary E. Gammons, Apr. 6, 1912.

THE MARCH OF THE FROST KING

Bright are the colors the Frost King is weaving

Now in the mantle which robes all the trees;

Delicate touches his fingers are leaving—

Silently, kissed by the cool evening breeze—

Purple and orange and pale-tinted yellow,

Varied with meshes of bright scarlet shade,

Green-tinted borders relieving its fellow—

Skiffed wrought in the permanent now made.

From a light groundwork of russet is gleaming

Flashing shadows of amber and gold,

Which, like a flame, in the sunlight is beaming.

On his robes in the breezes unfurled,

Silver-leaved maples and ash trees are glowing,

Flashing so deeply as morning steeds on,

Oaks all their various beauties are showing,

Smiling as if all their glory was won.

Now through the woodlands the Frost King is going,

Gathering strength for a final display;

Myriads of troops to his standard are flowing.

Each to join in the brilliant array,

Music, though plaintive and mellow, is sounding,

Floating o'er meadow, o'er valley and hill,

Summer's fair soldiers, their weapons are grunting,

Ere they shall sleep by the ice-fettered rill.

Thus we move onward, 'mid life's changeful battle,

Shoulder to shoulder through earth's busy strife,

Hearing the echoes which round us e'er rattle,

Always attending the cares of this life;

But let us whisper kind words at our parting,

Gladly to cheer every soul on his way;

Strength for the conflict and counsel imparting.

While in the valley of sorrow we stay.

Changes must come; for the leaves are now falling,

Shadows bespeak, too, the close of the day;

But in the future sweet voices are calling,

Angels of mercy will smile on our way.

Then, when our warfare is peacefully ended,

Trouble and sorrow and trials all o'er—

Contentment and joy and triumph all will be ours,

Will crown us, victorious in bliss, evermore.

MEN ARE PYGMIES

As Compared With the Issues of the Present Campaign, Says Governor Wilson in Speech at Denver

In a speech at Denver recently, Gov. Wilson used the following language:

"As I was coming out west a friend of mine, who was a westerner, said: 'Governor, you have been too polite. We western people like punch in our speeches. Now give it to the other fellows. Don't spare them.' But I tell you frankly I am not interested in hitting other people. Why, every man concerned in this great contest is a pygmy compared with the issues."

What difference does Mr. Taft's record make to me? What difference does Mr. Roosevelt's career so far make to me? What difference does my own character, what do my own attainments—whatever they may be—make in the presence of these tremendous issues of life? I tell you truly I cannot afford to think about Mr. Taft or Mr. Roosevelt when I am thinking about the fortunes of the people of the United States. What is at stake in a speech compared with that immortal vision that the American people once had of liberty and country? What are men as compared with the standards of righteousness? What is this generation when measured by the standards that will or will not perpetuate the great policy set up in America?"

WOMAN SAVED

Her Clothing Caught Fire and Maiden Doctor Succeeded in Smothering the Flames

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Dr. Wilson E. Hunt, 332 Pleasant street, Malden, saved the life of Mrs. Walter Ogilvie yesterday morning by extinguishing her burning clothing, which had caught while she was attempting to put out a small fire in her front yard at 17 Ripley street.

She received serious burns on her back, neck, hands and arms. Her 14-year-old son, who had lighted the fire with kerosene, ran away when he saw the flames envelop his mother, and was found last evening hiding in a neighbor's yard.

Mrs. Ogilvie attempted to beat the fire out with a broom. Her apron and dress were in flames in an instant.

Dr. Hunt, a physician, who was passing at the time, went to her assistance and first smothered the flames with the skirt which he wore and then tore away the burning clothing. By the use of restoratives and prompt bandaging he was able to leave her in a comfortable condition.

American Dentists in Norway

Children in the public schools of Stavanger, Norway, are treated with the aid of American dental apparatus by a dentist who received his post-graduate dental education in the United States.

This year two rooms were fitted up as dental clinics. Twice during the school year the children are to have their teeth examined. If any defects are found, the dentist will attend to the child a card to take home to the parents asking their consent to treatment, the work to be done for the child free of charge. The 500 children in the first grade whose teeth are under observation this year will be graded so that they pass into succeeding grades as their teeth are improved. The plan will spread automatically to the other school system. The dental rooms are open every day, 9 to 11 a. m. for boys, and 2 to 5 p. m. for the girls.

DR. PARKER RE-ELECTED

President of the Parker Historical Society

The second annual meeting and reunion of the Parker Historical and Genealogical society was held in Chelmsford on Columbus day with a large attendance. The members and guests assembled about noon and then visited the monument in the common, where a group picture was taken. Inscribed on the monument is the name of Isaac, Col. Moses Parker, who was wounded at Bunker Hill and died a prisoner at Boston on July 4, 1775.

Flags were placed on the graves of 50 descendants of the Parker family in Forest Hills cemetery. Later dinner was served in the vestry of the Unitarian church by request of the society, under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Parkhurst. Grace was said by Rev. Wilson Waters. At the business meeting following, the officers elected for the coming year were: Pres., Moses Greeley Parker, M. D.; vice-presidents, Charles Wallingford Parker, son of Herbert Parker, Willard S. Morse, Samuel S. Parker, Esq.; treasurer, Frederick Wesley Parker; registrar and historian, Capt. John Lord Parker; corresponding secretary, Theodore Parker; recording secretary, P. Hildreth Parker.

President, Moses G. Parker, M. D., called the meeting to order, and after extending a hearty welcome to all, called for the reading of the secretary's report of the last meeting. The report was read and it showed the great progress that the society has made during the past year. Other reports of an encouraging nature were read and all were unanimously accepted. It was announced that three members had died during the past year, namely, Harry Shelton Hopper, Charles J. Parker and Capt. Rufus E. Candage. Owing to illness, Capt. John Lord Parker, who was to give an address, was unable to attend. His paper on "Abraham Parker and His Descendants" was read by Rev. Lewis W. Hicks of Wellesley. Many letters of regret were read, while many of the reports of the assembly gave very interesting addresses. Many of the visitors were escorted to the many historical places located in the town, among the places being visited were Fiske House, the J. Adams Bartlett residence and the Adams library. At the close of the reunion it was voted a grand success.

Those present, as recorded by the register, were: Moses Greeley Parker, M. D., Lowell; Rev. Wilson Waters, Chelmsford; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Parker, Chelmsford; Rev. Lewis W. Hicks, Wellesley; Mrs. Amelia Hildreth, Worcester; Hattie B. Flowers, Worcester; E. C. Pratt, Worcester; Mr. and Mrs. P. Hildreth Parker, Lowell; Herbert W. Kimball, Waban, Mass.; Willard A. Parker, Lowell; Edwin A. Parker, Chelmsford; Phyllis A. Parker, Chelmsford; Mrs. S. G. Parker, Dracut; Miss Alice Parker, Dracut; Miss Annie Parker, Dracut; Miss Ethel Parker, Dracut; Edwin M. Currier, Dracut; Arthur B. Parker, Lowell; Sarah R. Parker, Lowell; Edith N. Asen, Lowell; Miss Lina S. Parker, Lowell; Mrs. Helen P. Spooner, Methuen; William J. Parker, Medford; Mrs. Katherine E. Humphrey, Lowell; Alice C. Parker, Lowell; Charlotte A. Stevens, Chelmsford; Mrs. Mary G. Morrison, Lowell; George E. Parker, Lowell; Martha E. Warren, Chelmsford; Mrs. Amasa Howard; Mrs. Jesse H. Parker, Chelmsford.

Not the Feeble-minded and Degenerate Child Alone, but Also the Handicapped Normal Child, Needs Special Attention in Our Schools, According to the announcement of the National Association for the Study of Exceptional Children.

The third annual conference of the association, to be held in New York, October 30 and 31, will be devoted to the educational and social rights of exceptional children of the handicapped type, in contradistinction to the case of the comparatively small number of feeble-minded and degenerate, who must be provided for in separate institutions, and for whom there is usually little possibility of educational development in the usual sense of the word.

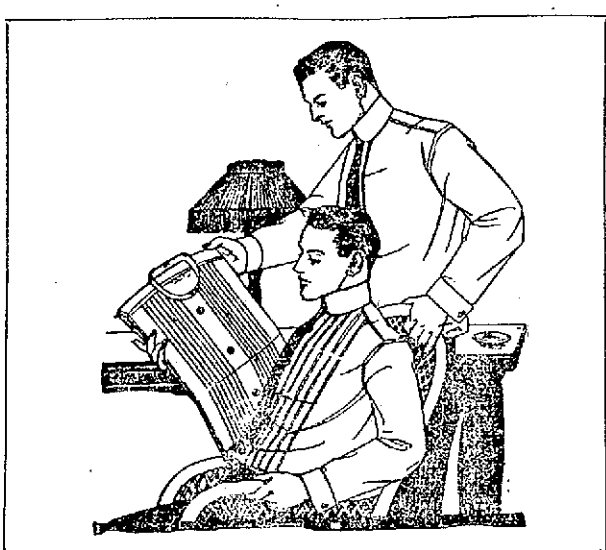

The significance of the problem lies in the fact that there are far more exceptional children of this type, which includes also children apparently retarded, than there are of the class of real defectives and degenerates.

A number of well-known speakers have agreed to take part in the discussion, and some of the interesting topics to be considered are: Tests for measuring intelligence; the "borderland" child; juvenile delinquency; habit formation; school and community gardens; practical methods of correcting impediments in speech; Dr. Montessori's "children's houses"; medical inspection; rational human energies; and numerous others.

Dr. H. C. Wood, United States commissioner of education will preside at the conference.

DAKOTA DAN'S STORY

Differs From What He Told Previously

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Certain photographs, which were not produced at the first hearing of the famous Russell identity case, purporting to be of persons who ought to be known by the real Daniel Blake Russell, were shown to the present claimant "Dakota Dan," on the stand yesterday afternoon, and the latter was unable to recognize them. The Dakota claimant also gave a different story as to his wanderings with "Bob" Twist just after he left home than he told at the previous trial.

The Dakota claimant was on the stand the entire day, under cross-examination by Attorney Robert N. Nason for the Russell estate.

There was considerable dispute over one of the photographs shown the claimant, which he thought looked something like his uncle, Thomas Lynde, but would not state positively whom he thought it was. Attorney

Nason said that he did not care to have the photograph go in as evidence at the present time, as he thought some of the friends of the claimant would identify the picture and inform "Dakota Dan."

Attorney McNally, representing "Dakota Dan," in the absence of Attorney Scharton, declared that he wanted the picture to go in or have the testimony regarding it to be stricken from the record. It was finally decided that the photograph should go in as evidence, Master Pevey agreeing that no one but counsel for both sides should see the photograph.

At considerable length Attorney Nason questioned the witness concerning his travels after he left home in 1885, particularly concerning his experiences with "Bob" Twist. Attorney Nason read at length from the record of testimony of the first trial to refresh the memory of the witness, he said. The latter declared that he did not need to refresh his memory.
